

LEGAL CLASH TODAY OVER E. L. DOHENY'S TESTIMONY ON LOAN

Defense to Combat Offer of Senate Hearing Statement.

QUOTE FEDERAL LAW AS BAN ON EVIDENCE

What Was Said at Congress Inquiry Held Inadmissible in Criminal Trial.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

One of the most important legal clashes between opposing counsel in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial is expected to mark the beginning of today's session in Justice Heehling's court. The question at issue—all-important from a legal standpoint, though it will seriously affect the presentation of the government's case—will be whether or not the record of Edward L. Doheny's testimony before the Senate committee on public lands and surveys respecting the $100,000 loan can be admitted as evidence.

On January 24, 1924, thirteen months after the signing of the final contract involved in the indictment, Mr. Doheny appeared before the Senate committee and volunteered the information that he had loaned Mr. Fall $100,000 in November, 1921. With the utmost frankness Mr. Doheny told of the incidents connected with the loan and Albee Pomerehne and Owen J. Roberts, the government's special counsel, want to submit the full record of Doheny's story to the court.

Government's Move Opposed.

Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Doheny, has frequently indicated that he regards this testimony, voluntarily given, as favorable to his client, and it has been assumed that Mr. Hogan will endeavor to get the purpose of it before the jury, either from the lips of Mr. Doheny himself or through some other method. But Mr. Hogan and the defense counsel vigorously oppose the government's move to admit the record as evidence because they contend that such a procedure is in plain violation of the revised statutes. Section 859 of the revised statutes reads as follows:

"No testimony given by a witness before either House or before any committee of either House of Congress shall be used as evidence in any criminal proceeding against him in any court except on a prosecution for perjury committed in giving such testimony. But an official paper or record produced by him is not within the said privilege."

Thus, under ordinary circumstances at least, it would appear to be definitely established that Doheny's testimony before the Senate committee could not be used against him. His willingness to waive might alter the case, it is contended in some quarters.

Fall Has Not Waived Immunity.

But Fall has not waived immunity and, by the nature of the present conspiracy charge, anything which affects the jury's verdict as to the guilt or innocence of Doheny necessarily affects Fall because there are only two persons charged with conspiracy and the verdict of the jury applies equally to both. In other words, there is no such thing as one defendant being guilty of having entered into a conspiracy with the other while the other is guiltless of any part in the conspiracy.

Nevertheless, it is believed that the government's counsel will seek to use the Doheny record before the Senate committee against Fall and not Doheny in an effort to get around the obstacle raised by section 859.

The fact that there are only two defendants in this conspiracy charge admittedly makes the evidence in the Doheny case, four persons were charged in the indictment with having conspired to defraud the government. Though two of them were dead, it would have been possible for the jury to have convicted one and acquitted the other if the evidence had warranted it.

When there are more than two persons charged with conspiracy, which is almost invariably the case, the evidence may show that certain of the persons indicted were guilty, whereas others were not. The evidence concerning one defendant may be used against the others though it may not be admissible if it affects the status of the first defendant.

Point as Viewed by Defense.

But, it will be stressed by the defense, when two persons are charged with having conspired with each other, it is impossible to maintain that evidence affecting the jury's opinion of the guilt or innocence of one has no effect on the other's standing before the jury.

The defense will also contend that Doheny's testimony before the Senate committee occurred thirteen months after the last alleged overt act in the alleged conspiracy took place. The government's counsel, on the other hand, is expected to seek to make a distinction between "testimony" and "evidence" in connection with the Doheny statement.

It may be contended that the Doheny statement before the Senate committee is evidence as distinguished

New York Offer Is Made To Run Great Falls Plant

Financiers Want Government to Develop Project Under Terms of Moore Bill—Zihlman to Confer With Norris, Who Opposes Plan.

New York interests have offered to take over the operation of the Great Falls waste power project if it is developed by the government under the terms of the Moore bill pending in Congress. It was learned yesterday, Chairman Zihlman, of the House District committee, who, with Representative Moore, of Virginia, is sponsoring the measure, plans to confer with Senator Norris, of Nebraska, in an effort to overcome the latter's objection to the measure in its present form. The bill provides that the government should develop the $45,000,000 project, but that not a move should be made until private interests have guaranteed its operation. New York interests have already approached Zihlman in this connection.

This stipulation is insisted upon by those sponsoring the measure in the House as a means of not leaving the government with another Muscle Shoals on its hands. At present it is the only difference between the House sponsors and Senator Norris.

The senator is an out and out advocate of government development of the project and he is so much opposed to private development that he does not want a stipulation about private operation to go in the bill authorizing its development. It is his attitude that the method of operation can be determined later.

The public may have come around to his point of view regarding waste power development in the meantime. He succeeded two years ago in getting a bill through the Senate calling for straight-out development of the project by the government, but it was killed in the House.

Aside from the attitude of the House, it is doubtful if the administration would consent to the measure without the guarantee of private operation, and there is no indication that it will accept it even with the stipulation. As a matter of fact, the budget bureau turned thumbs down on the measure in its present form.

SHADE OF JOHN RODGERS SPURS PANAMA FLIERS

Men of PN-10 No. 2 Prepare Plane for Continuing Flight to Canal Today.

NO. 1 IN TOW OF CRUISER

(By the Associated Press.)

The shade of John Rodgers smiled encouragement today to his former mates as they rested and contemplated their failure to write a new chapter to the annals of aeronautics. The feat of the valiant commander who fifteen months before had led an expedition across the Pacific which brought him and his crew down a record distance of 1,841 miles from the starting point to drift nine days before a submarine found them off the island of Kauai remains the greatest nonstop performance for navy fliers in PN seaplanes.

Two PN-10 seaplanes, improved in design and construction over those which Rodgers and his companions flew, were down today. They took off at twilight Tuesday on a nonstop venture intended to take them 2,060 miles from Hampton Roads, Va., to Colon, Panama Canal Zone.

That of Lieut. Comdr. H. T. Bartlett, the PN-10 No. 2, was taking inventory today of her flight at Sigüenza bay, Isle of Pines, preparatory to resuming the voyage. Bartlett, with Lieut. H. C. Rodd and C. H. Schildhauer and Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate Charles J. Sutter, went down at Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, at 6:30 a. m. Wednesday, their oil supply exhausted.

He reported yesterday that repairs could be made in time to take off at 6 a. m. today for the final 700 mile hop to Colon, and requested a destroyer to stand guard along the route. If none is available he will undertake the flight with the cruiser Raleigh trailing him at 25 knots.

9 ON PLEASURE BOAT SAVED AFTER BLASTS

Taken Off Near Texas Port Just Before Fire Engulfs the Cruiser.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Nine persons aboard the cruiser Helena were rescued uninjured tonight when the pleasure craft was set afire by a series of explosions two miles off shore, in Corpus Christi bay.

The first explosion was caused by a backfire, which ignited oil in the bilges. This ignited 15 gallons of lubricating oil and the oil fire set off about 100 gallons of gasoline.

Capt. Angelo, of the yacht Lola, and Capt. Newton Curry, of the Bonnie May, went to the rescue of those aboard the Helena, taking them off a few minutes before the gasoline explosion wrapped the boat in flames. The Helena, still blazing, drifted ashore.

Mrs. Helen M. Jaffka, one of the two licensed woman masters in the country, is owner of the Helena.

Will Rogers Says Sam Hill Is Trying To Join His Party

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—Marie, the migrating monarch, has walked out on us. That leaves nobody touring America but me. I get over pretty big in little towns like this where they never saw a queen. Most days here they can't even see each other. Ford's man and Sam Hill are trying to get on my train now, but I don't want to ride from the depot in one of those America's sole tourists.

MAN PLUNGES 170 FEET, ACCEPTING CHALLENGE

Leaps From Delaware Bridge When His Brother-in-Law Says He Will Follow.

RELATIVE IS ARRESTED

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Acceptance of a challenge to jump off the Delaware river bridge cost Robert Wilkie, an ironworker, his life tonight.

Wilkie and his brother-in-law, Walter Gordon, dared each other to jump from the bridge as they strolled across the structure after having eaten their Thanksgiving dinner.

"If I jump, will you follow me?" Wilkie asked Gordon.

"You bet I will," Gordon said he replied. In an instant Wilkie plunged 170 feet into the murky waters, the brother-in-law following.

Both men came from Glasgow, Scotland, a few years ago.

Friends May Rebuy Isadora Duncan Home

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Paris, Nov. 25.—American friends of Isadora Duncan tonight started a drive for funds to repurchase her mansion at Neuilly, which was sold at public auction today to pay off the dancer's debts.

The house, which is known as an art temple, brought 310,000 francs ($10,300). It was purchased by the attorney, Bernard Berthelin, for an anonymous buyer. The sale was necessitated by a law suit to collect a debt of 14,000 francs ($450).

The dancer's friends have a week to raise the funds before the sale becomes legal.

STRIKE OF TRAINMEN IN CANADA IS VOTED

Conductors and Yardmen Are Included; 15,000 Affected; Pay Dispute Is Cause.

Montreal, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—"Peaceful withdrawal from the railway service" of 15,000 Canadian railway employees unless "satisfactory settlement" of a wage dispute is attained was voted today by a committee representing conductors, trainmen and yardmen. Engineers are not affected.

Strike action would affect virtually all of Canada's steam transportation. The date of the strike was not set. According to union officials it is likely a walkout will not be called immediately pending the outcome of wage arbitration in the United States.

The Canadian railway men are demanding wages commensurate with those paid for similar work in the United States. Their request involves a 6 per cent increase.

The strike decision was reached by the full committee of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Trainmen following action by the union's membership. More than 300 representatives of the organization from throughout Canada were in conference.

Officer Kills Friend; Shoots Self and Dies

Long Branch, N. J., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Clifford C. Martin, local policeman, who last night shot himself after shooting and killing his friend, C. Spencer Gulick, died today of his wounds. No motive was advanced by the police. Martin and Gulick had been close friends and both were members of the American Legion.

PULPIT AND TURKEY DIVIDE HONORS HERE OVER THANKSGIVING

Food for Poor, Football and Church Services Mark Holiday.

STEARNSES GUESTS AT COOLIDGE DINNER

Feasts Given Unfortunates at Missions; City Prisoners Dine Well.

Pulpit and festival board held the stage in Washington's observance of Thanksgiving yesterday, a mingling of solemnity and joviality.

Not every one went to church, but almost everybody must have feasted. In any event, the city's welfare workers tried hard to see that everybody did. So it is not likely that the significance of the day was forgotten.

Will Rogers provided the keynote for the Thanksgiving dinner, and it was sounded in many a home by the jovial head of the family.

"The more turkey you eat," said Will, "the less hash you will be bothered with the rest of the month."

President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge went to church in the morning, and in the afternoon set down to a glittering Thanksgiving dinner, the piece de resistance of which weighed 24 pounds. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, of Boston.

Diplomats Attend Mass.

Virtually every South American and Central American diplomat in Washington attended the Pan-American mass in St. Patrick's church—all but those from Mexico. And they were spared the ordeal of hearing their country prayed for its religious policy.

Bishop William J. Haffey, of Raleigh, N. C., who preached the sermon at the mass, declared the "Catholic Church is the one obstacle blocking the path of brotherhood in Mexico," and he added that is the reason Mexican officials are trying to banish it.

Bishop William F. McDowell preached at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist church, where the President and Mrs. Coolidge went to worship.

"To keep the love of truth alive in our souls," said the bishop, "is vastly more important than the safety of banks in which man deposits his worldly wealth."

The other outstanding religious services were those in the Bethlehem chapel at the National cathedral and in the Calvary Baptist church. Both were heavily attended.

Union services were held in other churches also, Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational and Lutheran churches of various sections of the city joining in services, with ministers of different denominations participating in some of the services.

Special Food for Prisoners.

A small army of unfortunate men enjoyed free turkey dinners in the mission houses. The Central Union mission fed 800, the Gospel mission 100.

Robber Shot Dead With Own Revolver

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Surprised in the act of robbing the home of Michael Micholovich, one man was shot to death with his own revolver and his companion seriously beaten here early today.

Awakened by his wife, who was confronted by the two robbers, Micholovich was struck on the head with a mace by one of the men, identified as Francesco Trippi, 25, of Wheeling. Although dazed, he wrested the pistol from the hands of the second robber, Alex Cozze, 27, this city, and killed him.

Two boarders set upon Trippi, mauling him so badly that doctors at a hospital despaired of his life.

Capital Divorces Gain 25.4, Marriages Only 5 Per Cent

Statistics in Nation for 1925 Are 3 Per Cent Increase in Weddings, 2.7 for Separations—Maryland and Virginia Show Low Figures.

Cupid finished a poor second behind Divorce in the marital sweepstakes in the District of Columbia for the year 1925, according to figures made public today by the Department of Commerce. The percentage of increase in marriages here that year was 5 per cent, while the percentage of increase in divorces was 25.4 per cent, this notwithstanding the fact that the District grants a divorce on only one ground—infidelity.

From a national standpoint, too, Cupid got the worst of it. Marriages in the entire country represented an increase of 3.9 per cent, while divorces registered an increase of 2.7 per cent. A total of 158 divorces were granted in the District in 1925, as against 126 for 1924. This represented 31 per 1,000 of population, compared with 26 of 1,000 population in 1924. The population in 1925 was estimated by the

Two Tie Games Feature Day of Football in East

Thanksgiving day football drew unprecedented crowds throughout the nation yesterday and hand in hand with the games were the customary aspects which have been a feature of the waning season.

Brown, within reach of the eastern title, had its claim belittled by a tie with Colgate. Penn and Cornell also battled to a deadlock, while Syracuse defeated Columbia and Washington and Jefferson won from West Virginia.

Locally, Catholic university scored over George Washington and the Howard Blisons routed the Lincoln Lions.

IRVING BERLIN FATHER OF 7-POUND DAUGHTER

Stork Pays Visit to Song Writer and Wife on Turkey Day at New York.

Called Image of Her

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Nov. 25.—Thanksgiving day was a day of genuine thanksgiving to Irving Berlin, song writer, and his young wife, Ellen Mackay Berlin, daughter of the aristocratic head of the Postal Telegraph & Commercial Cable Co. But while the nation gathered about the festive board to do homage to that delectable bird, the turkey, the Berlins were blessed with the arrival of a bird of a far different species—the stork.

When the door to his wife's suite in a maternity hospital opened and a white-clad nurse stood at the threshold, smiling, Irving rushed to hear the news.

"It's a girl, Mr. Berlin," said the nurse. "Mrs. Berlin came through it splendidly," she added.

For Irving didn't care, he said, whether the newest Berlin was a boy or a girl. All that mattered to him was that the little one was alive and healthy and that the girl who had given up wealth and social position to become his wife on January 4 last, had emerged safely from the valley of shadows.

Hardly three blocks distant from the hospital where Ellen lies with this tiny duplicate of herself, is the home of her unforgiving multimillionaire father, Clarence H. Mackay, who today was shooting wild ducks on Gardiner's island, off Montauk point.

But scarcely a half hour after the baby opened its blue eyes and began to cry, Ellen's mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, was at her bedside.

"You are a grandmother again, Mrs. Blake," said a reporter.

"Yes, and I am delighted to be," Mrs. Blake replied. "I am very happy this Thanksgiving day. The baby is the exact image of my daughter," added Mrs. Blake. "She is a very, very pretty baby."

Mrs. Blake said her new grandchild weighed 7 pounds and 8 ounces.

Steamer Takes Crew Off Blazing Schooner

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Rescue of the crew of a burning schooner 5 miles off Stratford shoals by an Eastern Steamship Co. freighter was reported here by the Independent Wireless company said it had received a message from the S. S. Priscilla, via New London, Conn., reporting the rescue. The name of the schooner was not given. She was said to be standing by with all sails set during the fire.

Woman's Body Stuffed Back of Furnace; $10,000 in Jewelry Missing.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Robbery was believed by police tonight to have been the motive for the slaying of Mrs. Florence Monks, wealthy widow, whose body, strangled and beaten, was found stuffed behind the furnace in her home here last night.

Gems valued at $10,000, usually worn by the widow, were missing and her bodice torn where she often wore a diamond sunburst. The house had been ransacked, chests and drawers emptied. The body was found by the caretaker of Mrs. Monks' country home.

Mrs. Monks, who was twice a widow was believed to have an estate worth $500,000. With her second husband, John J. Monks, she came to Seattle from New York five years ago. She had advertised her home here for sale, and officers advanced the theory that her assailant had gained admission by representing himself as a prospective buyer.

Count Salm Arrives As Quota Immigrant

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Count Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraeten, husband of the former Millicent Borge, arrived on the Homeric today as an immigrant under the German quota, to bring suit for separation against his wife. The suit has been postponed several times pending his arrival. Hearing has been set for this week.

The count said he plans to establish a permanent residence in the United States and is "considering becoming an American citizen."

MACHINE GUN RAKES STREET IN CHICAGO; 3 MEN ARE STRUCK

2 Brothers, Gangsters, and a Bystander Are Victims of Attack.

HOME IS DYNAMITED IN HARRISBURG WAR

Store Riddled With Bullets; Explosion Rocks Town; Faction Feud Blamed.

Chicago, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—The rat-a-tat-tat of a gangster machine gun and shotguns broke the Thanksgiving quiet of the Southside tonight, and when the smoke of the battle had cleared away, two notorious gangsters and a bystander lay wounded in the street, the result of a renewal of the war of extermination between rival bands of bootleggers and gangsters.

The victims of tonight's outbreak were Thomas and Charles O'Donnell, bootlegging gangster brothers of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, who has engaged in the "beer racket" here. The bystander who was wounded was Charles Barrett, and standing only a few feet from the scene of the shooting was John Conroy, county assessor, who was unhurt.

The battle was as spectacular as that staged in State street on the North Side a few weeks ago, when several gangsters were shot by rivals hidden in an apartment building and armed with a machine gun.

O'Donnells Are Cornered.

The O'Donnell brothers were cornered by several men riding in an automobile from which bristled the muzzles of a machine gun and several shotguns.

Charles O'Donnell had left the home of Miss Margaret Burns in South Ashland avenue and his brother, Tom, at the same moment came out of a cigar store across the street when the automobile pulled up a few feet distant.

The tunnel is one of two similar projects being built to carry water around the Grinda hills into Oakland. It is approximately 1 mile long, 10 feet in diameter, and "U" shaped.

Although full details of the accident were not known at the office of the construction concern, it was believed the force of the water from the creek caused the sides of the bulkhead to cave in. Tons of earth are believed to have been carried down upon the workers, who at the time were placing wooden support work preparatory to the pouring of concrete.

King George Approves Canada's Envoy Here

London, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—King George today gave approval of the appointment of the Hon. Vincent Massey as first Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States.

Mr. Massey was appointed to the Washington legation by an order in council issued by the Canadian cabinet at Ottawa November 10. Announcement was made before he left with Premier Mackenzie King to attend the imperial conference in London. He is 39 years old, a graduate of the University of Toronto and Oxford, and was a member of the Mackenzie King cabinet in 1925.

3 DEAD, 20 INJURED IN BRANDSVILLE, MO.

Heber Springs and Moscow Badly Damaged; Fire in Gale's Wake.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Tornadoes, striking sharply at a half dozen widely scattered points in Arkansas, late today and early tonight exacted a toll of 20 lives and accounted for at least 60 injured, 7 seriously, with reports still incomplete, and turned Thanksgiving day prayer and joy into sorrow.

The greatest loss of life and property damage occurred, it was believed, at Heber Springs, Cleburne county, where fifteen persons were killed, an undetermined number injured and approximately fifteen blocks of dwellings in the north section of the little town destroyed.

At Opelo, some 75 miles southwest, in Conway county, a party which gathered at the home of Jake Stafford, seeking shelter from rising winds, saw the family annihilated when the residence was blown away. Seven were hurt and five killed.

Eight persons were killed and 30 injured at Moscow, a small community in Jefferson county, including several negroes.

A child was killed at Sheridan. The Arkansas Gazette and railroad office here compiled the death toll and their figures were believed to be exact.

AIR OF THANKSGIVING OVER CITY AS NEEDY ARE GIVEN DINNERS

Baskets of Necessities Also Come From Individuals and Organizations.

350 FAMILIES ON LIST OF CENTRAL MISSION

Salvation Army Issues Store
Orders; Emergency Home
Children Have Turkey.

The spirit of Thanksgiving in Washington visited less fortunate homes yesterday as a messenger of the plenty with which the city as a whole was blessed, driving away the wolf of hunger with baskets of bountiful dinners, providing other necessities and casting out of doors the gloom of poverty with a message of good-will and thankfulness.

Besides the individual gifts, organizations contributed their share of Thanksgiving cheer to needy families. The gifts took many forms, including, besides food, such necessities as clothing and coal. One Boy Scout troop gave a ton of coal to a family.

The Central Union mission distributed 350 well-filled baskets among poor families. The baskets contained a lot of pork, three vegetables, cereals, bread, coffee, sugar, celery and potatoes. A dinner also was served by the mission to homeless persons, approximately 250 attending.

The majority of those at the dinner were men, while there were a few women and children. A service, conducted by J. S. Bennett, superintendent of the mission, preceded the dinner. G. G. Kundahl, mission evangelist, spoke. The dinner was served by the Women's guild.

Ample Dinner Served.
The dinner was ample, the chief article being roast pork. The 40 children of the emergency home of the mission were given a turkey dinner. The Gospel Mission mixed a good dinner with evangelism, the first thing on the program being the dinner. A dinner of roast pork, sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and several other side dishes was served to approximately 200 men. Services then were conducted for the men the entire afternoon and into the evening, various departments of the mission being in charge. Harvey V. Prentice, superintendent, had general direction.

The mission also distributed 100 baskets among needy families. The baskets were well loaded with meats, bread, potatoes, canned goods, tea, coffee, sugar and flour. The 30 children of the Children's home were given a turkey dinner.

Store Orders Given.

The Salvation Army followed its usual Thanksgiving day program. According to Staff Capt. Ernest R. Holz, "store orders" were distributed among the 200 or more families on the army's permanent list. The amount of money called for in the orders depended on the size of the family. Capt. Holz explained. By this means the family could purchase what they desired.

A turkey dinner for homeless men was served at the army social service center at 102 B street northwest. Brig. Myrie Pickering presided at the dinner, which was attended by about 200 men. Special services were conducted during the day.

The various troops of the Boy Scouts were busy, and the majority of the troops distributed basket dinners. Oth-

Thanksgiving Spirit Fills Jail When Baskets Arrive

Thanksgiving yesterday found Washington's misbehaved population at low ebb in the District jail, there being only 404 inmates, a number considerably below average. And it found death row filled with the gloom of its ominous shadows—and with no men.

Although its iron bars a dependable prison make, they were insufficient yesterday to shut out the holiday. In fact, the holiday came right in through the front door in the form of turkeys, cakes, candies, fruits, nuts and other food.

The day at the jail, therefore, was marked by much feasting. The fortunate prisoners shared their turkey with the less fortunate. Many of the baskets prepared by relatives spiced nothing.

THANKSGIVING WEDDING FOLLOWS PARIS ROMANCE

Claudia B. Read and Langston Moffett Married Quietly and Secretly.

BOTH STUDIED IN EUROPE

Surprising their parents and their friends, Miss Claudia Beverly Read, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Beverly Allen Read, of 1712 Sixteenth street northwest, and Langston Moffett, son of the late Cleveland Moffett, author, were quietly married yesterday evening by the Rev. T. J. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church.

The young couple had been engaged for some time, but their plans for a speedy wedding had been kept secret, probably because of the death of the bridegroom's father a short time ago. It is believed that they completed their plans for the wedding while in Paris recently. Miss Read is a talented artist and young Moffett has recently completed a book, which is in the hands of his publishers.

Miss Read was graduated from Holton Arms school and was one of the prettiest debutantes of several years ago. She recently returned from a year in Paris, where she was studying. Mr. Moffett also was in Paris at the time, engaged in the writing of his book, and it is believed that their mutual taste for the artistic drew them together.

Mrs. George Thomas Sumner, Jr., attended the bride, while Rixie Smith was best man. After the ceremony the young couple called the bride's mother and informed her of their marriage. Mrs. Read said last night that while the marriage was a surprise, she was very much pleased.

The newly married couple attended dinner at the home of friends last night.

Boy, Hunting Rabbits, Shot by Companion

Hunting rabbits proved disastrous yesterday for Ralph Chase, 15 years old, of Clifton Park, Md., who was shot accidentally by his boy companion and severely injured, when the latter fired at one of the elusive animals. Twenty-eight pieces of buckshot were removed from Clark's body by Dr. H. H. Howlett, of Silver Spring, Md.

According to the injured boy's story, he started to hunt rabbits in the woods near his home, accompanied by a friend. They both sighted a rabbit at the same time, when Clark's companion suddenly fired at the animal, the buckshot penetrating Clark's body. The rabbit escaped.

Diplomats and Federal Officers
at St. Patrick's.

Upholding the Catholic Church in Mexico as a barrier to the communization of that country, Bishop William J. Hefey, of Raleigh, N. C., delivered a scathing attack on the policies of the Mexican government at the annual Pan-American mass in St. Patrick's cathedral yesterday. A brilliant congregation, which included diplomats, Federal and municipal officials and distinguished citizens attended.

Representatives of virtually every South and Central American nation heard Bishop Hefey's address, with the notable exception of Mexico, none of whose envoys was observed at the ceremony. Strikingly colorful aspects were lent to the services by the full-dress uniforms worn by many of the diplomats, the national emblems and flags of the various Pan-American nations decorating the cathedral, and the procession of church dignitaries in gorgeous robes that preceded the celebration of the mass.

Bishop Hefey drew a vivid parallel between the condition of the orthodox church in Russia and the Catholic Church in Mexico today. The real issue, he said, is between the bolshevism and the American ideal.

Thanks God for Martyrs.
The "Thanksgiving Day" sermon of his powerful sermon was struck with a stirring forward in the pulpit after a leaning tribute to the American form of government, which he said was the only one that could stand up to the "because the bishops of Mexico and the clergy of Mexico and the people of Mexico have determined, it need to die for the American ideal."

The mass was celebrated by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, officiating at the ceremony being the Rev. James J. O'Connor, dean of the Rev. Francis X. Cavanaugh, subdeacon; the Rev. John K. Cartwright, and the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, masters of ceremonies. Throughout the entire mass, the sanctuary choir, the mixed choir and a string orchestra played specially arranged music. The cadet corps, in uniform, lined the aisles, and came to salute when the bugle rang out at the elevation of the host.

Among the many notables who attended the services were the Ambassador of Peru and Mme. Velarde, the Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. Amaral, the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Chacabarro, the Minister of Guatemala, the Minister of El Salvador, the Minister of Honduras and Mme. de Olaya, the Minister of Panama and Mme. de Alfaro, the Minister of Costa Rica, Senor Oreamuno, the Minister of Bolivia and Mme. Freyre, the Minister of Haiti and Mme. Price, the Minister of Nicaragua and Mme. de Castro, the Minister of Venezuela and Mme. de Gisianni, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Mme. Morales, the charge d'affaires of Cuba and Mme. Baron, the charge d'affaires of Paraguay and Mme. de Ayala, the charge d'affaires of Ecuador and Senor Barberis, and Mme. Varela, wife of the Minister of Uruguay.

PULPIT AND TURKEY MARK THANKSGIVING

and the Salvation Army 200. In addition these organizations distributed 650 baskets of food to poor families. Prisoners at the District jail and other penal institutions were not allowed to forget it was Thanksgiving. At the District jail they were served roast pork, cranberry sauce and the usual "trimmings." Many of the prisoners received baskets containing turkey, and these they divided with their colleagues.

The annual football clash between George Washington University and Catholic University was the choice of the sport menu, and a large crowd journeyed to Brookland to witness it.

Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization, gave its ninth annual ball in the Mayflower hotel and attracted a large number of men and women. Altogether it was a fitting observance of Thanksgiving day, one that the Pilgrims themselves would approve. And now Mr. Average Washingtonian have to begin to worry about Christmas.

CHILD KILLED, 11 HURT IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Hit-and-Run Driver Not Apprehended; Car With Five Turns Over.

COLLISIONS NUMEROUS

An 8-year-old colored girl was killed and eleven persons injured in traffic accidents on Washington streets yesterday. Johanna, Terry, colored, daughter of Dr. E. C. Terry, 3217 Eleventh street northwest, was killed almost instantly when run down by a "hit-and-run" driver while crossing at Eleventh and Kenyon streets northwest.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, when a touring car driven by James Veatch, 27 years old, 1219 I street northwest, turned over in rounding a curve on Central avenue northeast, near Benning road.

The car was traveling at a high rate of speed, witnesses told police. The injured are Mrs. Julia Veatch, 23 years old, 1219 I street northwest, possible fracture of the hip and back; her husband, James Veatch, driver of the car, cuts and bruises on the face and head; Mrs. Virginia Boswell, 23, Capitol Heights, sister of Veatch's cuts and bruises; Thomas W. Boswell, 25, her husband, injuries to shoulder, and their 4-year-old son John McLean Boswell, cuts and bruises.

Police of the Eleventh precinct arrested Veatch on a charge of reckless driving, after he received treatment in Providence hospital. The other four were taken to Casualty hospital, where they were treated by Dr. Gaudolfo, Sindoni and Phillips. Veatch later was released under $500 bond and sent to Casualty hospital for further treatment.

Thomas E. Lyons, 35 years old, Flagler apartments, was arrested by police of the Seventh precinct early yesterday and charged with "hit-and-run driving" after he was in collision with a milk wagon driven by George W. Campbell, 35 years old, 603 G street southeast, Wisconsin avenue and Hall place early yesterday. Campbell suffered cuts on the head.

Mrs. Ruth Friedlander, 27 years old, and her 5-year-old daughter, Jean, 2739 Woodley place northwest, were seriously injured last night in an automobile accident. The car, a gasolier, was driven by a chauffeur, who suffered cuts and injuries to her spine, while the child was severely cut on the forehead. The car, driven by Leon Friedlander, was in collision with a station at 3401 Connecticut avenue northwest, was in collision with an automobile driven by Charles Tankersley, 1886 Monroe street northwest.

While skating in an alley in the rear of 391 Florida avenue northwest yesterday, Charles Robinson, 27 years old, colored, 1805 Fourth street northwest, suffered a broken leg when run down by an automobile, driven by John Minor, colored, 324 First street northwest. Minor took him to Freedmen's hospital.

John A. Marvin, 61 years old, 3115 Woodland drive northwest, suffered a broken collar bone last evening when the automobile in which he was riding was in collision with another of the same address, crashed at Eighteenth and K streets northwest with a taxicab, driven by Ernest B. Lint, 40 years old, 1846 Potomac avenue southeast.

Following treatment at Emergency hospital last night, the automobile he was driving was in collision with another car at Sixth street and Maryland avenue southwest, H. C. Hood, 1300 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was arrested at the Fourth precinct station on charges of intoxication and reckless driving. The car Hood drove crashed with an automobile driven by A. C. Thompson, 22 years old, 712 B street southwest, damaging both vehicles.

Rockville Marriage Licenses.
Licenses have been issued in Rockville for the marriage of Thomas F. Reddin, 35 years old, and Miss Mary E. Robinson, 20, both of Accotink, Va.; James Ray Dodd, 24, of Washington, and Miss Nellie W. Manuel, 26, of Midland, Va.; and Earl D. Huger, 25, of Hagerstown, Md., and Miss Alma R. Baker, 21, of National, Md.

Why We Celebrate Thanksgiving Day
When American earth had yielded up, in the fall of 1621, its first harvest to that little band of colonists who landed from the Mayflower, those devout forefathers and their descendants gathered together and gave thanks to God for the harvest, the first sign that their great adventure was destined to prosper.

Today, when the sun has shined from the sky that little band of the face of such incredible hardships and dangers, was the first foreboding of a prosperity so vast that today we can observe Thanksgiving as a day of feasting and celebration.

MRS. HALL VISITOR AT PRISON TO DINE WITH 2 BROTHERS

Smiling and Buoyant, She Is Prepared to Go Upon Witness Stand.

MAY BE HEARD TODAY
IF COUSIN IS BARRED

Widow of Rector Pleased by Letters Praising Alert Attitude of Willie.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, about to follow her two brothers to the witness stand in the Hall-Mills case, went to the jail today to have Thanksgiving dinner with them.

Prepared to testify tomorrow or Saturday, she was buoyant and smiling as she reached the jail and made one of her few statements for publication when she told reporters, "I hope you have a good Thanksgiving dinner."

Mrs. Hall brought several applause cards to Willie Stevens. It was evident that her cheerfulness was caused, in part at least, by many letters she has received from friends telling of their enthusiasm over Willie's ability to take care of himself as a witness.

Offers Strange Contrast.
On the stand in his own behalf, her brother was William Carpenter Stevens, very much at ease and offering a sharp contrast to a widespread impression of a Willie Stevens, who had lagged behind the procession or dropped out altogether.

As her brother testified, alertly side-stepping traps laid for him by prosecution counsel and politely correcting the State's lawyer when he stumbled at a pronouncement or term, Mrs. Hall beamed her satisfaction when she saw him jump.

BUM ROGERS, TAKEN AS $100,000 BANDIT, HAS ONLY A PENNY

Sought Since Last December, Pal of Killer Is Seized by 22 Detectives.

IDENTIFIED AS CHIEF OF PAYROLL ROBBERS

Man Who Twice Made Daring Escapes Captured Asleep;
Then Alarm Rings.

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Five minutes before the tinkle of an alarm clock might have sent him out of reach of the arm of the law, John J. "Bum" Rogers, escaped convict, was captured today in his bed in a Bronx tenement house.

Retiring last night as a free but widely hunted man, wanted since his escape shortly before Christmas last year, the former convict awoke on Thanksgiving day to face an army of detectives.

Twenty-two men, heavily armed, swooped in on the apartment, on the fourth floor of a building in Third avenue. Guns, pistols and blackjacks confronted the dazed and afeeling fugitive, whose appearance long ago earned him the name of "Bum."

Questioned at police headquarters, Rogers, alias John J. O'Brien and Hughes, disclaimed having participated in any of the robberies of recent months in which his name has become a recurrent symbol.

Denies Leaving the City.
He said he had not been outside Manhattan and the Bronx since his escape last December, and search of the apartment in the tenement failed to reveal any money or stolen goods.

"The only objects in the pockets of the man who was believed to have participated in numerous robberies and the sensational $100,000 holdup of a mail truck in Elizabeth, N. J., last month were a cent and a button. His clothes were ill kept and a ragged mustache, grown apparently for disguise, added to his characteristic 'down-and-out' appearance."

At the police station he heard himself referred to as "just a bum," and not the daring fellow "made a hero of in the papers."

"If I had all the money one paper said," he commented stolidly, "I'd be a rich man."

Rogers escaped December 14 last. A guard taking him to Sing Sing to serve 36 years for various robberies was clubbed by a pal of Rogers as the train entered the station at 125th street, New York, and the two fled.

During the eleven months of freedom the name of "Bum" Rogers was linked with nearly every robbery of magnitude and daring in the metropolis.

Several other men were exchanged and Maryott fell with a bullet in his side. Albee, believing Maryott dead, bent over him. As he did so, Maryott shot him twice, killing him.

Maryott is well known as a taxidermist and baseball player, while his paintings of wild animals have given him some fame. He is expected to recover.

Held Insane, He Kills A Woman Witness

Reading, Pa., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Michael Twardowski, an inmate of the State hospital for the insane at Wernersville, escaped from the institution early today, came to this city and killed with a hatchet Mrs. Catherine Kowalski, mother of seven children.

Twardowski blamed Mrs. Kowalski for giving testimony at a hearing that sent him to the asylum as an insane person. Twardowski, who was taken to jail, admitted the killing and said he was glad he had ended the woman's life, accusing her of having had supernatural powers.

WOMEN OF FASHION FILL BRITISH COURT FOR MURDER TRIAL

Alphonse F. A. Smith, Hugh
Ryan's Grandson, Slew
Friend, Is Charge.

PROSECUTOR DECLARES
UNWRITTEN LAW VOID

Prominence of Men Causes
Deep Interest—Prisoner
Jaunty in Dock.

Maidstone, England, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Fashionably dressed women besieged the court at the opening day of the trial of Alphonse F. A. Smith, formerly an officer in the Dragon guards, for the murder of his life-long friend, John J. Derham. Admission to the courtroom is by ticket only. Two elderly women are on the jury. Smith is a grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, Canadian railway builder. His first wife was Ruth Wynne, daughter of Robert J. Wynne, postmaster general under President Roosevelt. His present wife was named in her divorce suit.

The tragedy aroused universal interest because of the prominence of the two men, both wealthy, socially elect and graduates of Eton and Cambridge.

On August 12, last, Smith, his wife and Derham were together in the Smith villa "Stella Maris" at Whitstable. There was a quarrel and Smith emerged from the struggle badly bruised. Derham was dead. The defense claims that Smith intended to commit suicide and that Derham, in attempting to prevent him, was accidentally shot.

The coroner's jury in September found that there was not sufficient evidence to show who fired the shot or whether it was by accident or design. At the inquest it was disclosed that Smith had on more than one occasion shown anger at Derham's attentions to Mrs. Smith.

England does not recognize the "unwritten law," the crown prosecutor, Roland Oliver, said in opening the case, and added:

"Our law does not accept that a man with either good or bad reason for being jealous of another could act in this way. If it were said that the motive prompting Smith to fire was jealousy, that is no answer in this court."

Smith appeared in the dock with jaunty men and smartly dressed. The young and attractive Mrs. Smith was not present, as the law does not permit a wife to give evidence for or against her husband, and, as the prosecutor pointed out, there was no other witness of the actual shooting.

Angry Letters Read.
A feature of the evidence was the reading of much angry correspondence between the parties, particularly between the two men, which, the prosecutor contended, proved the state of mind of a man intending mischief. One letter alleged to have been sent by Smith to Derham declared: "You stole my wife after eating my bread."

Lillian Wight, the pretty 15-year-old sister of Mrs. Smith, gave virtually the same testimony as at the inquest. She did not see the shooting, but declared that she heard Smith say to his wife: "I won't have this other lover of yours sleeping in the house."

Later she heard a bang and running downstairs saw Smith lying on the floor with Derham sitting on him and striking him. Mrs. Smith finally succeeded in pulling Derham from her husband.

Stresemann Policy
Upheld in Reichstag

Berlin, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Foreign Minister Stresemann and his foreign policy of conciliatory bargaining with France received the support of an overwhelming majority of the reichstag today, when fascists and communists alone voted in the affirmative, while the nationalists abstained.

The reichstag adopted a motion by the middle parties requesting the government to inquire into the possibility of obtaining an investigation by the world court of the question of war guilt. The socialists and communists voted against the motion.

TEMPLE DEDICATED BY 25,000 MASONS

$7,000,000 Detroit Structure Completed; Called Finest in the World.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Ancient Masonic rituals in which 25,000 master Masons participated were performed today at the dedication of the new Detroit temple, said to be the most magnificent in the world.

An audience greatly outnumbering the craftsmen witnessed the invocation and ceremonies led by William H. Gallagher, grand master of the order, before the $7,000,000 structure.

Every branch of Masonry was represented. Dignitaries from all parts of the United States and Canada took part in a parade led by Knights Templar in plumed helmets.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Ford Newton, of St. Paul's cathedral, Philadelphia, delivered the address of dedication. Grand Master Gallagher also addressed the gathering at the raising of the American flag over the temple.

Convicted as Shipper Of $750,000 Rum Cargo

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—James Gordon, alleged master of the gasoline tug Sparrow III and the barge Margaret Egan, seized by coast guard officials July 12 with about 6,000 cases of liquor aboard the barge, was found guilty by a jury in Federal district court here late yesterday on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

The jury was unable to agree in the cases of James Ryan and John O'Reilly, who were charged with conspiring with Gordon to violate the prohibition law.

O'Reilly and Ryan denied knowledge of the liquor cargo worth about $750,000. Ryan said he was hired in New York as cook aboard the tug which then proceeded to Elizabeth City, N. C. The liquor was on the barge.

When the marshal approached Maryott, the latter shot at him but missed. Albee fired and hit Maryott in the leg.

Several other men were exchanged and Maryott fell with a bullet in his side. Albee, believing Maryott dead, bent over him. As he did so, Maryott shot him twice, killing him.

Maryott is well known as a taxidermist and baseball player, while his paintings of wild animals have given him some fame. He is expected to recover.

WOMEN OF FASHION FILL BRITISH COURT FOR MURDER TRIAL

Alphonse F. A. Smith, Hugh
Ryan's Grandson, Slew
Friend, Is Charge.

PROSECUTOR DECLARES

Jaunty in Dock.

Maidstone, England, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Fashionably dressed women besieged the court at the opening day of the trial of Alphonse F. A. Smith, formerly an officer in the Dragon guards, for the murder of his life-long friend, John J. Derham. Admission to the courtroom is by ticket only. Two elderly women are on the jury. Smith is a grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, Canadian railway builder. His first wife was Ruth Wynne, daughter of Robert J. Wynne, postmaster general under President Roosevelt. His present wife was named in her divorce suit.

The tragedy aroused universal interest because of the prominence of the two men, both wealthy, socially elect and graduates of Eton and Cambridge.

On August 12, last, Smith, his wife and Derham were together in the Smith villa "Stella Maris" at Whitstable. There was a quarrel and Smith emerged from the struggle badly bruised. Derham was dead. The defense claims that Smith intended to commit suicide and that Derham, in attempting to prevent him, was accidentally shot.

The coroner's jury in September found that there was not sufficient evidence to show who fired the shot or whether it was by accident or design. At the inquest it was disclosed that Smith had on more than one occasion shown anger at Derham's attentions to Mrs. Smith.

England does not recognize the "unwritten law," the crown prosecutor, Roland Oliver, said in opening the case, and added:

"Our law does not accept that a man with either good or bad reason for being jealous of another could act in this way. If it were said that the motive prompting Smith to fire was jealousy, that is no answer in this court."

Smith appeared in the dock with jaunty men and smartly dressed. The young and attractive Mrs. Smith was not present, as the law does not permit a wife to give evidence for or against her husband, and, as the prosecutor pointed out, there was no other witness of the actual shooting.

Angry Letters Read.
A feature of the evidence was the reading of much angry correspondence between the parties, particularly between the two men, which, the prosecutor contended, proved the state of mind of a man intending mischief. One letter alleged to have been sent by Smith to Derham declared: "You stole my wife after eating my bread."

Lillian Wight, the pretty 15-year-old sister of Mrs. Smith, gave virtually the same testimony as at the inquest. She did not see the shooting, but declared that she heard Smith say to his wife: "I won't have this other lover of yours sleeping in the house."

Later she heard a bang and running downstairs saw Smith lying on the floor with Derham sitting on him and striking him. Mrs. Smith finally succeeded in pulling Derham from her husband.

Stresemann Policy
Upheld in Reichstag

Berlin, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Foreign Minister Stresemann and his foreign policy of conciliatory bargaining with France received the support of an overwhelming majority of the reichstag today, when fascists and communists alone voted in the affirmative, while the nationalists abstained.

The reichstag adopted a motion by the middle parties requesting the government to inquire into the possibility of obtaining an investigation by the world court of the question of war guilt. The socialists and communists voted against the motion.

APPOINTING SMITH TO MCKINLEY'S SEAT NOW HELD UNLIKELY

Other Names Are Discussed for Place Should Senator Die in Short Session.

PUBLIC FORGETFULNESS HOPE FOR BY LEADERS

Presence of Illinoisian, It Is Feared, Would Start Fight
On Him and Vare.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

Political undercurrents, designed to subordinate the cases of Frank L. Smith and William A. Vare until the meeting of the Seventieth Congress, are working, it is learned, to prevent Smith from becoming a member of the Sixty-ninth Congress in the event that the seat now occupied by Senator William B. McKinley, of Illinois, should become vacant.

A short time ago every suggestion from Illinois, where the campaign of the senator-elect was carried on by contributions made by Samuel Insull, was that Gov. Small, in the event that the seat now occupied by Senator William B. McKinley, of Illinois, should become vacant.

Recently both national and State pressure has been brought to bear in an effort to prevent just such a situation. Friends of Smith, Vare and Small have been busy engaged in a movement to have some other Illinois man named, if need be, and so bring Smith before the Senate with Vare in December, 1927, with the certificate of election obtained this fall and not with credentials from the State chief executive.

Want Issue Presented Jointly.

The motives influencing this course of action are rather involved. Friends of Smith and Vare believe in the first place that it would be better for them to present the issue jointly, and in the form of two seats which would be lost temporarily to the Republican party if they should be turned back. There does not appear to be any great danger that any attack on Smith could be carried to the point of rejection if he came here by appointment of Gov. Small, but it is not to be taken for granted that they do not want to take that chance.

The contingency that carries the greatest weight with Republican party leaders in the Senate, however, is that the appearance of Smith at the coming session might lend itself to a filibuster designed to block legislation and force an extra session.

The right of a senator to the seat for which he has been named is a matter of the highest importance. Even if the Senate had before it no motion to deny Smith his seat, it would always be possible for the Democrats and Progressives who are opposed to the Illinois man to take the floor and discuss the matter.

Lorimer Debate Was Long.

It is recalled that debate in the Lorimer case was carried on sporadically for months, during an entire session of Congress, and far in advance of any concrete action against the man who was eventually to be denied the right to sit.

Senate leaders are anxious, therefore, to avoid a controversy of a similar nature in this Congress which would afford such an excellent opening for any of the members who wish to bring Congress back to Washington in March, especially since they feel that there is enough opposition to the challenged senators-elect to warrant a filibuster of more than ordinary strength based on their right to sit.

The final strategic reason which has caused Washington officials to take such decided interest in the matter is that there is a general feeling that a period of forgetfulness can not help but benefit the cases of the two men. Following the election and pending the meeting of Congress public interest has been focused to a great degree on the two cases. The controversy has been kept alive by statements made by opponents and proponents of the two men and newspaper comment on the various issues that have presented themselves.

Think Cause Helped by Quiet.

Provided that Smith is not sent to the coming Congress there are a good many senators who feel that time may soften much of the criticism now being heard. His appearance would, of course, precipitate debate on the question and serve to keep the issue constantly before the public, while a time of quiet may, some of those interested feel, mellow the cases sufficiently to bring additional strength to the two men under fire.

According to reports reaching the Capital from Illinois, both Smith and Gov. Small have been virtually convinced that it would not be wise for the former to come here as a senator before December, 1927, and because of the hopeless condition of Senator McKinley's health discussion of other available men already has begun. Other than the elimination of Smith, the problem does not appear to have crystallized.

from testimony and that it has been held by the courts that evidence whatever may properly be considered by the court or may properly be submitted to a jury for its consideration. But the defense maintains that no hair-splitting over the meaning of words can alter the plain language contained in section 859 of the revised statutes.

Present indications are that the government may conclude its presentation of the case about the middle of next week. In that event the trial may be concluded before Christmas, according to those who have charge of the defense.

886 MIDSHIPMEN STOP HERE ON WAY TO GAME

Football-Mad Cadets Leave Capital for Chicago in Four Special Trains.

The Navy team will have plenty of cheering support if the determined men of the nearly 900 midshipmen from Annapolis who passed through Washington yesterday means anything. Arriving in two special day coach trains at 3:05 p. m., they were quickly marched to the special Baltimore & Ohio Pullmans which were bearing them to Chicago, where they will form the nucleus of a football-mad crowd of navy men at the annual classic between the Army and the Navy.

The team left yesterday, escorted to its special train by cheering fellow students, confident of victory. The players will remain in seclusion in Chicago until they appear on the field.

The cadet regiment of 1,600 men at Annapolis was formed at 1:30 p. m. and divided. Half went to Baltimore and the other half, 886 men, came to Washington.

The Baltimore detachment traveled in special Pennsylvania railroad coaches. The seven Pullman coaches were attached to each of the four Chicago trains here. The first section pulled out at 3:30 p. m., with the private car of Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, commanding the Naval Academy, attached. The admiral's car also carried seven guests. The other sections left at ten-minute intervals.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland and his party were aboard a special car, which was attached to the second section of the Capital Limited, which left Washington shortly after 9 p. m.

The trains are expected to arrive in Chicago at between 9 and 9:30 o'clock this morning. A crowd of nearly 500 persons watched the entrainment.

Bullet Penetrates Window; Strikes Man

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 25.—William R. Rudd, aged 38, prosperous farmer of Caswell county, was shot and is believed to be dying as the result of a mysterious attack late last night. Rudd has told the sheriff of Caswell that a man called him before midnight asking him to help him with his car.

Rudd was dressing when a shot came through the window, penetrating his right breast and lodging near his spine. Rudd's 10-year-old son walked to the nearest farmhouse and a telephone alarm was given.

The injured man says he thinks he knows the identity of the man who called him, but has so far declined to name him.

FAIL-DOHENY JURY LETTERS CENSORED BY MARSHAL SNYDER

Sympathetic Expressions by Wives and Relatives Ordered Deleted.

ARE ALLOWED TO READ
CLIPPED NEWSPAPERS

Given Thanksgiving Dinner and Two-Hour Ride in Rock Creek Park.

Wives and other relatives of the jurors in the Fail-Doheny conspiracy trial were warned against writing "sympathetic" letters last night. A censorship has been established, a representative of the court announced, and all such matter will be deleted by the marshal.

Expressions like "It is a darned shame to make you endure such hardship," and "Little Mary is crying for joy" are the kind that will be censored, the court official announced.

Such expressions, it was said, are likely to upset the jurors and distract their minds from the trial itself. It was suggested to the wives of the jurors that they write generalities, forgetting all about the trial.

Have Dinner Under Guard.

Under guard of two deputy marshals, the twelve jurors filed out of the courthouse at 12:30 o'clock yesterday and marched to the St. James hotel. There, with the marshals as hosts, they ate their Thanksgiving dinner. Afterward they were placed in a bus and taken for a two-hour ride through Rock Creek Park.

United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder, who is in charge of the jurors, said that they will be taken to a monastery. He said, in fact, to see that they do not come in contact with the outside world.

News of Trial Is Clipped.

The jurors are given two newspapers each day—The Washington Post and the Evening Star. But before they read them all matter dealing with the trial is clipped out. Marshal Snyder said last night that he would take the jurors to a movie theater, and that he would have a picture made of them. He said that he would have a picture made of them.

Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax, has been named a member of a special committee by the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia to suggest changes in the rules of procedure and evidence in the courts of Virginia that may be deemed expedient.

The chairman of the committee is B. F. Buchanan, of Norfolk. Other members are J. M. Perry, of Staunton; S. V. Kemp, of Lynchburg; George Bryan, of Richmond; Thomas W. Shelton, of Norfolk; S. J. Burdett, of Richmond; and Edward R. Buford, of Brunswick.

A joint meeting of the public safety committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce with representatives of the Firemen's association, of Arlington and Fairfax counties and the Arlington county Monarch club, went on record as favoring the appointment of a fire marshal with police powers, and authority to make inspections of property and order improvements.

A special committee consisting of Walter J. Wiley, chairman, and members of the Firemen's association, and H. W. Beattie, of the chamber of commerce, was appointed to draft a suitable ordinance to be submitted to the board of supervisors.

Widow of Former Indiana Senator Buried at Brookville, Pa.

Word was received here yesterday of the death November 18 of Mrs. Laura Shively, widow of former Senator Benjamin J. Shively, of Indiana, at her home in Brookville, Pa. Mrs. Shively attended school in Washington while her father, George A. Jenks, served as representative in Congress. She married Senator Shively and lived for some time in Washington.

After the senator's death several years ago she left their home in Brookville, Ind., and returned to Brookville, where she was prominent in social and church activities. Mrs. Shively is survived by a daughter, Mary Shively, and two sons, John and George Shively. Mrs. Mary Sitz-Parker, of Washington, a lifetime friend, attended the funeral.

DIVORCES IN CAPITAL GAIN OVER WEDDINGS

115,378,094 and on July 1, 1924, 113,727,432. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 of population was 10.2 in 1923, as against 10.4 in 1924. The number of divorces per 1,000 population was 1.52 in 1923, as against 1.50 in 1924.

While the net increase in the number of marriages was only 3 per cent, the relative change in the different States ranged from a decrease of 12.5 per cent in Georgia to an increase of 91 per cent in Nebraska.

Nebraska not only had the greatest increase in divorces, but the greatest decrease in marriages, the percentage of decrease being 25.5 per cent. The Mormon State of Utah had the greatest increase in divorces, showing an increase of 22.9.

Both Maryland and Virginia showed smaller increases in divorces than the District of Columbia. While the District had an increase of 25.4 per cent, Maryland had an increase of 3 per cent and Virginia an increase of 3.7 per cent.

At the same time, these two States showed smaller increases in marriages than the District of Columbia. While the District showed an increase of 5 per cent, Maryland showed an increase of 4 per cent and Virginia an increase of 9.

COBHAM UNABLE TO FLY FROM LINER IN PLANE

With Lady Cobham, He Board Aero, Then Finds No Way of Dropping Aid.

TUG TOWS MACHINE IN

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Failure marked the attempt today of Sir Alan Cobham, the famous aviator, to fly a "moth" plane from quarantine to the Battery, to prove that mails could thus be expedited.

The only time that the small plane soared in the air was when it was hoisted from the deck of the Homeric to the water below. After being buffeted by ground swells the "moth" was finally towed to the Battery and later to Miller's field, Staten Island.

Sir Alan and Lady Cobham boarded the plane on the ship and were hoisted over the water. Two officers of the Homeric stood on the pontoons during the hoisting and lowering, but after one of the cables broke the plane was discovered that there was no arrangement to take off the man who was to have cranked or turned over the propeller.

The ground swell by that time was too strong to permit a safe take-off to take the water. The problem of getting the "moth" to the Battery was solved by having a tug tow the plane. Meanwhile the Homeric had passed the Battery, and a marine police boat was dispatched to search for the plane, as the rumor spread that the occupants were lost.

Members of the Aeronautical Society of America greeted them at the Battery, hailing the British aviator as a pioneer.

Many passengers on the Homeric voiced indignation that they had missed their trains and Thanksgiving dinners due to the ship's three-hour delay in docking to enable Sir Alan and Lady Cobham aboard the tug.

34 DEAD, 70 INJURED, IN TORNADES' SWEEP

Nurses. The dead and injured were taken to West Plains.

The dead: Claude White, 30, farmer. Small son of Fred Lile, of Bransville. John Johnson, Thayer, Mo.

The tornado came from the south and is supposed to be the "fall end" of the Heber Springs, Ark., tornado.

Citizens of Bransville received short warning of the approaching storm. Many were enjoying Thanksgiving dinners when a roar was heard. Within a few seconds, all was in disorder. Cries of help were heard above the wind and many homes were entirely destroyed.

Several of the injured are not expected to live through the night. Johnson was returning to Thayer when his arm was caught him. His car was wrecked and his body crushed.

2 in Competition Dead.

Lebanon, Mo., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Two persons were killed and many were injured at Competition, 25 miles southeast of here tonight, when a tornado struck the town, according to word received here. The dead:

W. I. Pittsworth, 35, a rural mail carrier. Claude White, 30, farmer.

All telephone communication with Competition was cut off by the storm. Word of the tornado was brought here by messenger. Many homes and buildings were destroyed.

Actor, Shot Twice, Completes His Act

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Charles De Roche, vaudeville actor, struck the town at night with two wounds from a blank pistol embedded in his side. At the climax of the piece he caught the heroine in his arms, but when the curtain fell he collapsed.

In the act, De Roche is fired upon by Harry Campbell, a local character, a French detective. Last night the two were closer than usual when the action came. At a hospital De Roche's wound was described as "not serious."

MORE EFFECTIVE GAS DEFENSE HELD NEEDED

Closer Contacts With Chemical Industry Also Urged by Fries' Report.

FURTHER TRAINING ASKED

Chemical agents employed during the world war are probably about as effective for production of casualties as any which may be discovered in the future, the annual report of Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of chemical warfare service, states.

There are, however, great possibilities for more economical and effective use of these chemicals, and these possibilities necessitate development of more effective defensive measures, he asserts.

The commercial application and development of chemicals is constantly increasing the supply which may be utilized in warfare, and for this reason closer contacts are maintained with the chemical industry.

Progress made by the service during the year has been concerned with development of defensive methods and equipment, offensive weapons, medical research and investigations undertaken to determine poisonous substances which may be effectively employed for eradication or control of insect pests.

Training in chemical warfare methods has continued in all corps areas and departments, and a broader knowledge of the subject is being acquired by all troops. This training, the report recommends, should be increased if our troops are to be sufficiently prepared to meet an enemy using gas.

The total strength of the service is 89 officers, two warrant officers and 399 enlisted men and is inadequate for proper performance of duties assigned. A minimum of 174 officers and 1,200 men is necessary. The reserve officer strength is 1,168, and 1,273 officers still are required.

The service has procurement districts with headquarters in Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago and San Francisco, and as many sources of material have been located, and numerous surveys of industrial establishments made.

hoodlums. They were looking particularly for a man known only as "Cogger," who had a fight with Charles O'Donnell last Saturday night near where today's shooting occurred, and who had made threats against him.

Second Attack in Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Assailants who early today attempted to take the life of Virgil Hundacker by dynamiting his home tonight made a machine gun attack on Hundacker and two friends as they were returning to their home here.

Hundacker, his father-in-law, Albert Robinson, and a friend, Milburn Brown, were attacked as they were driving on a State road at a rate of half west of here. Hundacker was shot three times in the neck, shoulder and arm, and Robinson was shot in the leg. Vin was not injured. Hundacker's condition is considered critical.

When officers reached the scene they found a machine gun, two rifles and a revolver in Hundacker's machine. Early today Hundacker's home here, which is near that of Charles Birger, a gang leader, was damaged by a dynamiting attack which shattered windows in the house. Hundacker and his family were in the house at the time, but none of them was injured.

Tonight's attack occurred about a half-mile from the home of Sam Ripperd, who figured in an earlier early Thanksgiving day shooting affray. The front of Ripperd's store, both the windows and door were smashed by bullets by five men, whom Ripperd discovered trying to enter the store. When Ripperd opened fire on them, the quiet returned to the street. Ripperd was slightly injured by a charge of buckshot.

Mother of 6 Is Sent To Jail in Dry Case

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Nov. 25.—A Page county jury yesterday sent Mrs. Lucy Cabbage, of the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, a mother of six children, one of them a few months old and all under 12, to jail for 30 days and fined her $50 for having in her possession mash for the running of liquor.

Mrs. Cabbage was convicted when a prohibition officer testified that he saw her pouring something into the mash at the still. Her husband was found not guilty, evidence showing he was not present. The still and mash were on land adjoining the Cabbage home.

Literary Agent Held For "Whisper" Book

London, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Hesketh Pearson, literary agent, was arrested today in connection with "The Whispering Gallery," a book by an anonymous author, disclosing alleged secrets of the court and private affairs of noted personages.

He was charged with obtaining £225 by false pretenses from A. A. Lane, a member of the John Lane Co., which produced the book last Friday, only to withdraw it from publication 24 hours later with the statement that they had apparently been the victims of a hoax.

Wise shoppers will watch the Classified columns of The Washington Post for suggestions on novel and useful gifts for Christmas.

MAINE LAW BROKEN BY SENATE NOMINEE, GOVERNOR ALLEGES

Did Not Support Gould for That Reason, Brewster Says in Letter.

HEARING ON CHARGES
BY KLAN CHIEF TODAY

Executive Declares G. O. P.
Candidate Benefits by Criminal Acts.

Augusta, Maine, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Maine's Republican
governor, accused Arthur R. Gould, Republican nominee for United States senator, with violation of the law regulating expenditures in the recent Republican primary, in a letter made public today.

"The successful nominee was the beneficiary of the expenditure of very considerable sums in excess of the legal limit," the governor wrote. It was the first time Gov. Brewster has issued any statement in connection with charges of excessive expenditures that have been brought against Mr. Gould.
His statement was made in a letter to Daniel F. Field, chairman of the Republican State committee, in explanation of his failure to take the platform for Mr. Gould in the present campaign.

Calls It "Stolen Goods."

"These expenditures," said the governor's letter, "undoubtedly played an important part in his success. He now states that these were made in his behalf by his friends without his knowledge or consent. Such expenditures without the knowledge or consent of a candidate are expressly for-bidden under the provisions of our statutes and the penalty of $500 is imposed for each offense. The nominee accordingly has profited very materially by the wholesale criminal acts of his friends and is exactly in the position of a man who is receiving stolen goods."

Charges that Mr. Gould's expenditures in the recent Republican primary were in excess of the legal limit of $1,500 will come up for hearing before the Senate today. The charges were made by the Rev. A. F. Leigh, of Randolph, prominent in the affairs of the Ku Klux Klan in Maine.
Mr. Gould is opposed for election by Fulton J. Redman, Democrat. The special election, to be held next Monday, was made necessary by the death of Senator Bert M. Fernald.

Moral Issue Paramount.

In his letter, in which he said that Mr. Field and other Republicans of Maine were entitled to know why he did not campaign for the Republican nominee, Gov. Brewster continued:
"The determination of the measure of responsibility for what was done between himself and his associates is a matter for their joint consideration.
His present plea of ignorance places all the responsibility upon his friends and must lead to their indictment if the officials charged with the enforcement of our statutes are faithful to their trust."

"If the test of one's Republicanism has become one's ability silently to acquiesce in a nominally so largely influenced by the unlawful expenditure of money and to join the candidate in becoming what is, in substance, an accessory after the fact to the sale commission of crime, it would seem time that the Republicans should reexamine the lives of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt and get back upon their course."

"The moral issue of illegal primary expenditures," he wrote in conclusion,
"seems to have become the paramount issue in this present campaign. It seems necessary to determine whether the people of Maine have developed a moral conscience as blunted as that of Pennsylvania and Illinois or whether they are still mindful of the traditions and heritage of idealism and moral courage that have made the Republican party great."

Hoover Will Not Speak In A. R. Gould's Behalf

Portland, Me., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, will not speak at a meeting scheduled at city hall here Saturday night to wind up the campaign in behalf of Arthur R. Gould, Republican candidate to succeed the late Bert M. Fernald in the United States Senate.

Chairman Daniel F. Field of the State committee canceled the meeting tonight after receiving a telegram from Senator Simon D. Pass, of Ohio, through whom arrangements for the coming of Mr. Hoover had been made, which read: "Strongly advise a second speaker Saturday night. No Hoover here may require Hoover's presence in Washington."

Mr. Field canceled off the meeting, he said, because he believed it impossible to obtain another suitable speaker at such short notice.

Sandstorm Wrecks Factory; 4 Injured

Frederick, Okla., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Four men were injured, one probably fatally, when a new cottonseed oil company building collapsed today in a 60-mile wind and sand storm.
Fire which followed the collapse of the building, destroyed four residences and threatened for a time to destroy the entire business section of this southwestern Oklahoma town.

Manning Says Annulment Is an Injury to Religion; Ruling Defended By Dunn

Marlborough Case Action Is Termed Impertinence and Interference; Some Serious Implications Are Seen by Episcopalian.

Mrs. Belmont, on Liner, Is Silent on Charge That She Threatened Fiance of Daughter if Proposal by Duke Was Rejected.

New York, Nov. 25.—The "whole proceeding" of the annulment by the Catholic Church of the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt "is a discredit to the Christian Church and injury to religion," said Bishop William T. Manning at the Cathedral of St.
John the Divine today.

The bishop's statement took the form of an extended message to the diocese of New York, in which he said "if marriages are to be declared null and void on plea of impotence as this, no marriage, and no home, can be regarded as safe."

The bishop criticized both the grounds on which the annulment decision was rendered, and the right of a vatican court to pass upon the validity of "a marriage between members of another communion, solemnized in a Protestant Episcopal church in New York, under the laws of the United States."

"This assumption of jurisdiction by a vatican court," he said, "has serious implications and will be rightly resented by great numbers of our people.
Our religious liberty in this country must be uncompromisingly defended against any such interference. This incident is a sharp reminder to all who love freedom of the importance of maintaining complete separation of church and state."

Impertinence, He Asserts.

Further characterizing the action of the Roman rota as "an unwarranted intrusion and an impertinence," Bishop Manning turned to the assertions from abroad that the 17-year-old Consuelo was forced into the marriage by her mother, the present Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who sailed yesterday for France.
The Secretary of the Vanderbilt wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal church here in 1895.

"Many who were present at the marriage," said the bishop, "and were associated closely with the Marlboroughs at the time have informed me that they saw no sign whatever that the bride was acting under any compulsion, but quite the contrary."

Mrs. Belmont Silent on Liner.

S. S. Berengaria, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—
Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Europe-bound, today reiterated her refusal to comment on the revelations made through publication of the holy rota's sentence annulling the marriage of her daughter, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the Duke of Marlborough.

She declined to discuss the assertion in the sentence that she had coerced her daughter into breaking her secret engagement with Winthrop Rutherford in 1895 by threatening violence, and then compelled her to marry the duke.

Plainly preoccupied, Mrs. Belmont talked alone at a table in the dining room of the liner, but refused to be interviewed by the press. She was with whom Queen Marie of Roumania and her son and daughter partook of a Thanksgiving luncheon today.

Mrs. Belmont avoids all the other passengers and passes considerable time alone in the salon, reading.

Former Wife of Marconi Desires Catholic Marriage

Rome, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—One of the reasons for the plea by William Marconi, noted wireless inventor, for annulment of his marriage to Beatrice O'Brien is to please his former wife, who desires to solemnize in the Catholic church her marriage to the Marquis Margnoli.

Senator Marconi and his wife obtained a civil divorce at Fiume, their being the last case acted on under Hungarian law before the city was annexed to Italy. Later the former Signora Marconi married the marquis, with whom she lives at his magnificent villa at Spoleto.

The inventor tonight categorically denied the statement published in an Italian newspaper that he had discussed the annulment question during his audience with the Pope yesterday.
Marconi also denied the declaration that he had instituted the annulment proceedings because he desired to marry a young English girl who has been assisting him in his scientific work, as well as a rumor that he intended to marry a Roman society woman.

Marconi's former wife is a daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin of Ireland. The couple were married in 1905 and the civil divorce was granted in 1924. Three children were born of the union.

The curia of Westminster, London, heard the application for a decree of nullity and granted it. The sacred nots in Rome now must pass on the Westminster decision.

The application recited that before the wedding Marconi and his bride agreed that they would separate whenever they so wished. Marriage, according to the Catholic Church, being from its very nature indissoluble, such a condition would make the Marconi marriage null in fact.

Church Always Opposed Tyranny and the Selling
of Women in Marriage, Catholic Prelate Says in Replying to the Protests.

Free Consent Called the Very Essence of Union.
God, Not Mammon, Must Rule, He Holds, if Defect Ever Is to Be Remedied.

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Bishop John J. Dunn, head of the chancery office of the Catholic archdiocese of New York, declared tonight that "the Catholic church has always opposed against tyranny and selling
of women in marriage."

Bishop Dunn's statement was made in reply to one by Bishop Manning, of the Protestant Episcopal church, criticizing the Catholic church for its annulment of the Vanderbilt-Marlborough marriage.

"Whatever doubt one might have had," said Bishop Dunn, "with regard to the compelling force of the evidence submitted in the rota is all dispelled in the amazing and shocking ex-posure contained in the sworn evidence, given by those closest to Consuelo Vanderbilt. It did seem that the day of making women captives and holding them captives for marriage has passed."

"Bishop Manning has stressed very vehemently the claims of the civil law as well as of the ecclesiastical law from the fact that the marriage took place in the United States and was performed according to the rite of the Protestant Episcopal church. He overlooked the higher law of the natural law, namely, the natural law, the law written into the very nature of things by God himself, which neither civil nor ecclesiastical law can change."

"The natural law makes it absolutely essential in order to have a contract of marriage that both parties to the contract be free agents and that they exercise their freedom by giving the necessary and fundamental consent which is the very essence of marriage. The ordaining clergyman in a religious ceremony or the official in a civil ceremony stands only as a witness to the marriage for the purpose of public knowledge and public record."

"If at the moment of the making of the contract either party is not free to give or is prevented from freely giving this essential consent, then there is no power in this world that can possibly supply or later rectify the fundamental and essential defect in the contract. The only course is for a renewal of the ceremony or a full communication to each other of mutual consent."

"The Catholic church in this particular instance simply is defending the sanctity of marriage in its very essen-tiality when it applies to the Marlborough marriage what it has applied from the dawn of Christianity to all marriages, namely, the principle 'what God has joined together, let no man put asunder,' but that at the moment of the making of the contract the Rev. Alfred Parsons, editor of the Standard, and Harry N. Stuart, of WRNY tonight, also took issue with Bishop Manning.

As to the question of the authenticity of the facts," he said, "it must be remembered that the church court listened to sworn evidence; and when Bishop Manning stated that the marriage was not a free one, he was contradicted by known facts. He is accusing not the Catholic Church but his own church member of perjury."

NORTHEAST ABSORBS TRINIDAD ASSOCIATION

Charges Fly Back and Forth
After Dissolution of Federation Member.

Dissolution of the Trinidad Citizens association, allied with the Federation of Citizens Association and its simulaneous merger with the Northeast Citizens association, and Antifederalist association, was disclosed last night. The merger was voted by the Trinidad association at its last meeting, but no announcement was made.
The action was brought to light by the dilemma of Harry N. Stuart, president of the Stanton Park association, another association of the northeast section, as to whom he should forward applications for membership resulting from the organized citizenship drive.
G. M. Koocke, sponsor of the combination, charged that a number of membership applications were being withheld from the northeast association by the federation campaign workers.

"The Trinidad association," Stuart affirmed with some asperity, "has been dying for several years and now it is going to curl up and die completely with the northeast association that always has been dead." The northeast association never will be admitted to membership in the federation, Stuart declared.

Mutilation Victim Fatally Shoots Self

Chicago, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Joseph Wozniak, 38, shot and killed himself last night because, relatives said, he continually brooded over a mutilation to which he was subjected four years ago.

The case attracted much attention at the time, Wozniak relating that he was kidnapped by four men and made the victim of an operation, which physicians said apparently was the work of an expert.

Commander Injured By Fall on Navy Ship

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
Gibraltar, Nov. 25.—Lieut. Comdr.
John H. Magruder, Jr., commanding the American destroyer Breck, was operated on this morning at the military hospital following a fall from the bridge of the ship during the rough weather on a trip from Cherbourg to Gibraltar. He fractured his right arm, but his condition is not considered serious.

Woman, Boy, 2 Girls Killed at a Crossing

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Four persons were fatally injured late yesterday when their automobile was struck by a fast Frisco passenger train at West Plains, Mo. Mrs. F. J. Cromer, 61, and her 6-year-old grandson, Donald Ray Briscoe, were killed instantly. Miss Verna Cromer, 21, daughter of Mrs.
Cromer, and Miss Allen Nale, 18, died
today.

CALLS SUPPORTED BY VARIOUS GROUPS IN OIL LAW DISPUTE

Matter Now Rests With U. S., Saenz Says; Mexico Has Explained Stand.

PETROLEUM PRODUCERS
NOTIFIED OF TIME LIMIT

Confiscation Is Penalty for Failure to Have Title to Land Confirmed.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)
Mexico City, Mexico, Nov. 25.—Mexico's reply to the last American note on the oil and land laws was delivered to the State Department Friday. Foreign Minister Saenz announced tonight.
The text of both the notes will be published simultaneously here and in Washington Wednesday, he said.
(Copyright, 1926, by Herald Tribune.)

Mexico City, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Speculation on future developments in the relations between Mexico and the United States has increased since the newspapers printed the final installments of the notes exchanged between the two governments on the Mexican oil and alien land laws, and the Mexican government let it be known, although in a statement not labeled official, that it has said all it has to say on the subject and sees no necessity of further notes.

Apparently the editorial declaration of El Universal that Mexico is only maintaining her sovereign rights represents a widespread popular conviction. President Calles is receiving expressions of support from the various political groups both regarding the oil and land laws and Nicaraguan affairs.
With no present prospect of either Mexico or the United States changing its position, some think that the situation will simmer along until January, when the Mexican government, in accordance with the laws then to be put into effect, confiscates the land of foreigners who have not secured the confirmation of their titles by the Mexican government, which may today declare whether it is satisfied with Mexico's explanations.

Courteous Attitude Taken.

The Mexican government, he added, adhering to a courteous attitude, had replied to all the notes sent by the American State Department by setting forth the Mexican views.

President Calles has received a message signed by 33 members of the majority group in the senate saying:
"The revolutionary group, considering the executive fulfils a high patriotic duty in upholding the nationalistic legislation passed by congress, unhesitatingly is defending its interests with the published notes exchanged with the American government, to send you a vote of adhesion and support."

The Department of Industry and Commerce today sent a reminder to the oil companies reading: "On December 1, 1927, are required, under penalty of forfeiture, to apply for confirmation of their titles and to accept concessions for not more than 50 years from the time exploitation work began."

"The government will consider said rights renounced by the holder if ratification is not demanded. As oil men participated in the conference for drafting the oil law regulations, they are already acquainted with the procedure to be followed for the demand of ratification."

(Under the Mexican oil law, owners of oil lands secured title prior to the enactment of the Constitution of May 1, 1917, are required, under penalty of forfeiture, to apply for confirmation of
their titles and to accept concessions
for not more than 50 years from the

71 Injured When Fog Causes 2 Rail Wrecks

London, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Seventy-one persons were injured today in two railway collisions, one near London and the other near South End, caused by a dense fog.

The mist rolled in last night and thickened this morning until in London it was possible to see only a few feet. Street traffic was greatly impeded, and there were numerous minor accidents.

Java Rising Crushed, Dutch Officials Hold

Batavia, Java, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—
With the arrest today of the rebel chief, Surjo Suparno, the Dutch authorities believe they have captured the last of the communist leaders and smashed the organization responsible for the recent uprising.

The natives who fled at the outbreak of the revolt are returning to their homes.

Drive Begun to End Capital Punishment

Describing capital punishment as legalized murder and barbarous retaliation, Mrs. Virginia Peters Parkhurst, director of the Susan B. Anthony Foundation, Inc., in Maryland, yesterday opened a campaign to abolish the gallows in that State. A bill providing the abolishment of capital punishment will be introduced in the Maryland legislature in January, and the foundation will work to have it adopted.

"If we are to continue the practice here in Maryland of placing a human being inside of a black bag at midnight and pulling his head from his shoulders," Mrs. Parkhurst said, "why not argue for the return of the torture rack upon which humans were placed in bygone days and torn limb from limb."

POISON AND STARVATION KILL SLAYER IN CELL

Under Life Sentence, Man Is Victim of Potion Taken
Just After Crime.

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Nov. 25 (By A.
P.).—Self-administered poison, taken ten days ago, aided by total abstinence from food since he entered the penitentiary here November 8, resulted in the death today of Walter Zweifel, confessed murderer of his mother-in-law and his brother.

A prison guard found Zweifel dead early today sitting upon his bed in the cell. He had taken no food for two days, according to Warden George Jameson, and was suffering from hal-lucinations. Death was due, however, to poison. When he entered prison November 8, it did seem that the date of his death was near. Zweifel, 30, had showed he had a weak heart and was delirious.

Besides refusing to eat, Zweifel refused to talk while in the penitentiary, according to Warden Jameson, except to answer the necessary questions in filling out the prison records.

Zweifel took the poison after he returned home following the shooting, Monday night, November 15. He confessed he killed to avenge a wrong he fancied his wife's parents had committed. He shot his mother-in-law, Mrs.
John Grose, and then fired a shotgun charge through a window. When several persons ran from the house, he fired more shots after them and killed
Robert Zweifel, 20, his brother.

Clarence Zweifel, 14, Emmanuel Grose, 24, and Mrs. Solomon Grose, 30, were wounded, but are recovering.
Zweifel pleaded guilty on November 18 and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

SAILOR, SLAIN IN ROW, THROWN OUT WINDOW

Norfolk Police Arrest Two U. S. Seamen and Hold Third as Witness.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Joe Menuel, seaman, attached to the U. S. S. Patoka, was killed early today in a local hotel and his body was thrown from a third-story window into an alley, where it was found at 3
a. m. by a policeman who stumbled over it in the dark.

Officers sent to investigate found Lester Selski, also of the Patoka, suffering from a deep scalp wound and other injuries. They arrested Edward Brookhart and Grady Newbourne, seamen attached to the U. S. S. Vestal, on charges of having murdered Menuel and assaulted Selski. William J. Dowd, seaman, attached to the U. S. S.
Arkansas, found in another room at the hotel, was held as a material witness. Police were told that the five sailors registered at the hotel last night. There was evidence in one of the rooms of a terrific struggle. A leg of a broken chair apparently was used in beating Menuel to death. His head was crushed and his neck was broken.

Three Envoys to U. S.
Arrive on Same Ship

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Three uncommunicative diplomats, the representatives of three countries to the United States, arrived on the Homeric
today.

They are Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Belgian Ambassador; Count Laslo Szechenyi, Hungarian Minister, and Sir David Kahn Meftah, Persian Minister.

All of them told ship reporters that they had nothing to say.

Son of Herrera, Hurt In Auto Crash, Dying

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).— Arturo R. Herrera, son of the former president of Guatemala, is believed to be dying tonight, and a companion, Rogelio de Marizco, of Maricao, Ohio, is dead as the result of an automobile accident near here.

The machine carrying the two men, students at Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, left the highway north of this city and crashed into a pole. Herrera has a fractured skull.

THE CRISIS WITH MEXICO.

In some quarters it is lightly assumed that the United States government is indulging in a meaningless exchange of notes with Mexico and that nothing will come of the intimation that diplomatic relations will be severed if Mexico persists in applying its retroactive and confiscatory laws to property owned by Americans. This assumption is based upon the opinion that Mexico is acting within its rights as a sovereign; that Americans must submit to the laws of a foreign country when they risk their money in it.

The fact is, however, that a break is impending. It can be avoided only if Mexico shall exempt American property from laws which are intended for general application. The exemption of American property would make the laws futile, and would mark a complete abandonment of the communistic theory of property which Mexico has adopted. There is no indication that Mexico intends to abandon that theory. On the contrary, the Mexican government has given clear notice that it will carry the laws into effect.

The difference between the United States and Mexico is fundamental. It is not merely a question of making further explanations for the sake of maintaining friendly relations.

The Mexican laws attempt to set aside the ownership of property acquired by law, and to substitute for vested rights a license whereby owners may retain limited rights, subject to cancellation by the government. Corporations are required to surrender 51 per cent of their stock to Mexican citizens. Owners are to have no ownership of the subsoil, although they acquired title lawfully many years ago. Possession of property is to be subject to a rule requiring that the possessor shall develop it.

These laws run counter to the rights of property universally recognized and protected in civilized countries, including, heretofore, Mexico itself. The execution of these laws means that Americans who acquired property under Mexican laws are now to be deprived of it, to the extent of millions of dollars, without compensation.

Unless the United States is prepared to abandon the duty of protecting its citizens it will sever relations with the Calles government when the work of confiscation begins, and will take steps to protect the rights of American citizens.

No President of the United States has tamely submitted to the aggressions of a foreign state against citizens of this country. Those who presume that President Coolidge will now establish the precedent of surrendering lawful American rights for the sake of currying favor with Mexico do not know the man.

This controversy is fundamentally the beginning of a struggle between communism and republican government in this hemisphere. Russian communism has not only secured control of Mexican policy but is extending its influence throughout Central America. If the United States acknowledges the right of any country to confiscate the property of Americans by enacting retroactive laws, no American or his property will be safe hereafter in countries dominated by the communists. Unless the United States bars the way, communism will destroy republican government in this hemisphere.

The keen intelligence directing the communism movement in the New World is little appreciated by Americans. They have not yet grasped the fact that a most dangerous enemy of republican government has appeared in the ignorant populations to the southward, and is rapidly converting them into fanatical communists. Having found a fertile field for their propaganda, the communist leaders are extending their operations, amply provided with resources drawn from their own victims. The native fear of the American "Colossus" is artfully excited throughout Mexico and Central America, and even in South America. Hatred of foreigners is taught with scientific skill. The property of foreigners is declared to be the rightful property of the "workers." Little by little the laws protecting individuals and property are undermined, and laws confiscating the property of foreigners are substituted. Rich natives are placed in the same category as foreigners, and their property is declared to be forfeited. In Mexico the rule of bolshevism, exactly as it is applied in Russia, is established and in operation. The Mexican government is aided by the advice and counsel of soviet agents who are specially trained to carry on the subtle war against republican government.

The test will come soon. The United States will either surrender or fight.

THE SEAPLANE FAILURE.

The latest failure of the navy to drive seaplanes a greater distance than ever before demonstrates at least two handicaps under which present day aviation must labor. The PN-10 planes, Nos. 1 and 2, manned by the most capable crews the navy was able to muster, both had been specially equipped and tested for the flight from Norfolk, Va., to Colon, Canal Zone. No pains were spared to make certain that so far as was humanly possible they were capable of making the 2,000-mile journey. Yet plane No. 2, the flagship, was forced down by fuel exhaustion after having flown but 1,185 miles of the distance, and plane No. 1 proceeded but 213 miles farther before a broken oil feed line forced it to alight.

In the case of plane No. 1, the fact is apparent immediately that airplanes, especially single-motored ships, are still delicate pieces of fine machinery, which can function over great distances only if good fortune follows in their wake. The plane and all its equipment undoubtedly were in perfect mechanical condition before the take-off. The crew in charge were well experienced and neither manhandled nor abused the ship. Vibration, however, always present to a greater or less degree in aircraft, insidiously tapping away at the engine over a considerable period of time, probably loosened one of the pipes feeding precious lubrication to the working parts and finally forced the ship to the water.

To the average man in the street it will be difficult to explain the failure of the No. 2 ship. Surely it should be easy to ascertain beforehand how much fuel any plane will consume per mile or per hour, and by mathematical deduction how much will be necessary for any given distance. The answer, however, is that in flying great distances a plane must be operated on a narrow margin of reserve fuel, because the lift load of a ship is limited, and adverse winds or other conditions impossible to foresee may eat up this reserve in short order.

The failure should not be considered a blot on the escutcheon of the navy, for an attempt was being made to accomplish something which heretofore has been considered impossible. The flight should be considered rather in the nature of a laboratory experiment from which sufficient knowledge may be gained to make possible at a later date similar or even longer seaplane journeys.

FEDERAL AND DISTRICT RELATIONS.

Since the publication of figures purporting to give the appraisal of Federal property in the District compared with the total value of all holdings, there would seem to be less reason than ever for opposition that has manifested itself in Congress against the proposed general survey of the fiscal situation. If Congress insists upon authorizing appropriations for the support of the District on the basis of a lump sum rather than a ratio, it should have definite and accurate information on the subject, so that it may act fairly and justly both to the Federal and the District governments, and that is all that is sought by the proposed inquiry.

Figures were made public Wednesday indicating that the government owns less than one-third of the property within the District. The $9,000,000 lump sum granted in recent appropriation bills is held by some of the influential members of the House to be disproportionate to the value of Federal property, and efforts will be made in the next session to reduce this lump sum by $1,000,000; this means, of course, further burdens for the local taxpayers. The estimated total value of all property in the District is $14,300,000, while that of the Federal government is fixed at $4,000,000. If these figures are accurate, those who are urging a further reduction in the contribution of the Federal government undoubtedly will use that fact as justification for their demands. District Auditor Donovan and some members of the House are of the opinion the $4,000,000 estimate does not approximate the real value of the government's property. It is for that reason they ask for the general survey.

The House appropriations committee, apparently, has accepted this estimate as the basis upon which it apportions the supply bill for the District, Chairman Madden and some of his colleagues on the committee holding that the division as determined in recent measures is liberal. Naturally men of such minds oppose the idea of the survey, but it does seem that no harm can come from a thorough inquiry into the whole subject. A bill providing for a survey, favorably reported from the District committee, is on the House calendar awaiting action. It should receive favorable consideration. Both views can not be correct, and both factions ought to welcome ascertainment of the exact facts. Until they have been obtained Congress is in no position to act intelligently and fairly on this important question which affects the taxpayers of the District of Columbia.

GIVE THE WEST A CHANCE.

The indications are that Chicago will entertain a bigger crowd tomorrow than has gathered in the Windy City on any occasion since the last national convention was held on the shores of Lake Michigan. The occasion is, of course, the contest for football supremacy between the navy goat and the army mule, which is to be waged for the first time in the history of the sport away from the Atlantic seaboard. It is likely, too, that those officers who have most to say as to the location of pigskin battles will discuss, on the journey to and from the Illinois stadium, the question of the locale of future games. It has been reported that the West Point Athletic association, which speaks for the cadets, is determined that for the next five years at least there shall be no contest between the two academies away from the Atlantic coast. Possibly, however, after witnessing for themselves the enthusiasm with which the blue and gray uniforms are greeted by the great crowd in Chicago they may change their views as to the advisability of staging the game in the West, in alternate years, at least.

In a letter to The Post printed last Wednesday, Mr. McCaleb, of Chicago, makes an excellent suggestion which it might be advisable for the athletic authorities of West Point and Annapolis to consider before reaching an unalterable determination to confine future contests to the stadia on the Atlantic coast. Mr. McCaleb calls attention to the fact that the game in Chicago tomorrow will give thousands of the people of the Midwest their first opportunity to see a naval uniform, and will visualize to them the splendid efficiency of the two great arms of national defense.

Mr. McCaleb makes a suggestion which is worthy of careful consideration when he says that it might be well to start a rivalry between the cities of the country as far north as St. Paul, west to Denver, and south as far as San Antonio, for the honor of occasionally entertaining the midshipmen and the cadets in their annual football classic.

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

One of the most difficult problems put up to the members of the cabinet, who are charged with the duty of locating public buildings, was contained in the "omnibus public building bill" which passed during the latter days of the last session. Ostensibly for the purpose of treating all sections of the country fairly, a provision was incorporated in that bill which directs that all the States shall be considered when the distribution of the "pork" is made. Those members of Congress who were responsible for thus tying the hands of the three members of the cabinet concerned are very much in the position of one who has been "hoist by his own petard," for there is scarcely a member representing a district outside the big cities of the country who has not discovered that every village of 5,000 inhabitants believes itself entitled to the honor of a Federal building.

One member from the West coast has been driven almost insane in an effort to placate his constituents who are insisting upon consideration when it comes to selecting the towns that are to be honored with a government building. He has no fewer than seven good-sized cities or villages in his district which are vying with each other for the honor of first place. Nor is he the only member thus worried, for the same rivalry exists in more than 20 per cent of the districts, particularly those of the trans-Mississippi section. Of course these rival claims are passed up for the consideration of the cabinet officers who form the selecting commission, with the result that aside from ascertaining the needs of additional facilities in New York, Chicago and a few other cities of the first class, no progress whatever has yet been made toward carrying out the building program, which contemplates the expenditure of $165,000,000 within the next ten years. It is a perfectly safe assumption that many members of the House are hoping that their particular districts will be among the last to receive consideration.

SHOP EARLY!

Breaking a precedent as old as the oldest mercantile establishment in the District, Washington stores today are placing on display their complete stocks of Christmas wares. In former years holiday goods were not placed on sale till the month of December. This year, however, local merchants have made a special effort to obtain from wholesalers and jobbers at an earlier date than heretofore the special holiday goods designed to meet the needs of Christmas gift giving, ordered months in advance of the season. Both stores and warehouses now are well stocked, and there is no reason why Christmas buying should not be started at once.

Analysis of past Christmas shopping statistics by the Merchants and Manufacturers association reveals a remarkable tendency during later years to make purchases well in advance of the usual holiday shopping rush. In part the change is attributed to the campaign for early Christmas shopping launched by women's clubs a few years ago. The Post-office Department, too, has been stressing a "mail early" campaign for several seasons, and the newspapers of the country have been generous with space to impress upon the public the justice and wisdom of making the day before Christmas mobs of last minute buyers a thing of the past.

There are only 25 more shopping days between now and Christmas. Each will be in all probability more crowded than the one preceding. At the present time stocks are complete and goods are fresh. As the days go by assortments are bound to become less varied. It is the part of wisdom for each and every individual to take personally the slogan appearing in the daily papers that it is wise in the interest of better service to shop early and mail early.

EAST WASHINGTON'S HOSPITAL.

The beginning of the new year will witness the inauguration of a drive for $250,000 for the enlargement of Casualty hospital. Washington has had its shares of "drives" in recent months, but this is one that deserves the support of citizens of all classes. The cause is worthy, and its success should be assured. For many years Casualty hospital has served the people of eastern Washington faithfully. At times the institution has suffered from lack of financial support, but there has never been a day when its loyal staff failed to respond to the call of the distressed and the injured. The territory assigned to this hospital is large; in recent years it has expanded greatly, and the necessity for increased facilities is immediate.

A sizable fund already has been pledged, and citizens of Southeast and Northeast Washington have bound themselves to put the proposed enlargement across. With this backing, architects already have been consulted, and plans are being considered for a 200-bed hospital to be erected adjacent to the site of the present building. With these preliminary arrangements completed hospital officials hope to begin construction as soon as the drive ends. A counterpart to Emergency hospital in the eastern portion of the District is a public necessity, and should receive cordial public support.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Best to Date.

Detroit News: Another dandy scheme for using up part of our extraordinary cotton surplus would be to add about 11 inches to either end of the sheets.

So Frequently the Case.

Dayton News: We could overlook the system by which some fellows get rich quick if it could only be arranged so they wouldn't, at the same time they are getting rich, acquire the habits of a 5-ton truck.

Why the Queen Turned Back.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Since the queen ended her tour just after eating that Kentucky ham there'll be Kentuckians, no doubt, who'll contend that she didn't want to spoil her journey by taking the taste of that ham out of her mouth.

Must Be Two Kinds.

Brooklyn Citizen: Even the New Jersey record for "Jersey Justice" was broken when a crook who snatched a pocketbook from a woman on Atlantic avenue, Atlantic City, was captured, arraigned, convicted and sentenced to 360 days in the county jail, all in 47 minutes. His trial lasted just two minutes.

The Important Egg.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The old-fashioned farm wife, who took her eggs and butter to the grocery to exchange for sugar, would rub her eyes to read that the Minnesota egg crop is second in importance, yielding a revenue of $40,000,000, which ranks ahead of wheat and is exceeded only by corn. Minnesota hens contributed $7,191,842 eggs the first half of this year to stem the agricultural depression.

The Useless Horn.

Terre Haute Tribune: Amid current arguments about noisy motor car horns in city streets, one important phase of the matter seems to be escaping notice. This is the fact that such horns have already become largely useless. They have defeated their own purpose. Like the fabled townsmen who finally grew tired of harkening to false cries of "Wolf!" city pedestrians have been hooded at so continually that even the loudest toot is likely to escape attention altogether. The attention-getting value of any noise depends much less upon its loudness than upon its rarity.

World's Wood Supply.

Philadelphia Record: Just as word comes from Paris of the successful operation there of wood-burning motor cars, which may eventually do away with the need of gasoline, London boys up with a startling report on the world's wood supply. The forestry subcommittee of the Imperial Conference, in session at the British capital, reports that a review of the forestry situation throughout the world leads to the conclusion that available supplies are daily approaching exhaustion. "There is every likelihood," says the report, "that in less than 30 years the shortage of soft woods will be severely felt." The United States, it is declared, "has only a 25-year supply of timber left, apart from the product of second growth areas." Somebody is always taking the joy out of life.

Time Will Tell.

Louisville Courier Journal: While the controversy rages over the theory of the five-day working week, Henry Ford goes ahead to readjust wages on that basis. He says he can maintain production on shorter hours; union officers accuse him of driving the men, and he replies that he is weeding out the inefficient and acquiring the cream of labor. Other industries are not sanguine of his success or the possibility of their emulating him under their own peculiar circumstances. Time will be the arbiter. Out of the experiment experts may extract some important conclusions bearing on the labor and production problems.

Woman's Rights.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Natural economic laws appear to be unable to influence the trend of feminine fashion. Mussolini found this to be true when he attempted to regulate women's apparel by decree. The cotton farmers of the South find no spontaneous response to their appeal that women substitute cotton for silk, and thus create a market for the chief agricultural

Money Not Sordid

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ENVIOUS Europe calls America a country of money grabbers. Envious individuals say money-getting is sordid and money filthy. Rot. Pure unadulterated rot. Money is the foundation of all progress and all culture.

The upper class in Europe is superior simply because for ages it had access to the tax money. It was founded by unwashed thieves who established their graft as an institution and thus got the money to develop a culture.

The musicians, the writers of books, the painters of pictures and all those who provide the varnish that is called civilization exist and flourish solely because less gifted men have made money enough to support them.

Their art is not greater than money; money sired it and now feeds it. Religion thrived even when a few men were masters and the many were unfed slaves, but it was a religion of superstition and beastly rites. A manly and intelligent religion does not develop until men acquire the money to develop intelligence.

The very poor are slaves—slaves to their stomachs. They think in terms of eating. A man's stomach must be full before he develops a taste for ideas. You can't develop a civilization on short rations. Civilization, in fact, is the product of the money men earn in excess of that required for their necessities.

Nine men in ten grow up to increased earnings, even if prosperity comes after middle age. And the children of these men, reared in prosperity, have a taste for culture almost from their infancy.

Go where you will, all the world over, and you will find ignorance hand in hand with poverty. Ignorance makes poverty; poverty makes ignorance.

The land that pays the best wages is the land that develops the best citizens. You can't teach a man tolerance, brotherly love and a respect for order while he is fighting for a crust.

If you would watch the growth of a civilization, watch the bank deposits.

(Copyright, 1926.)

that a copy indistinguishable from the original is worth as much as the original. The allegation regarding "Mona Lisa" is strongly denied, but whether true or false it calls to mind the chap who was horror-struck on being told that all those plays were not written by William Shakespeare but by another man of the same name.

Armistice Day.

Worcester Telegram: Col. John T. Axton, chief chaplain of the United States army, pleads against turning Armistice day "into a second Memorial day." He says November 11 should be a day of joy and happiness. He probably will not complain, however, if the gold-star mothers look upon Armistice day as a second Memorial day. A slambang, hilarious celebration is all right for those who lost nobody in the war, provided they are perfectly willing to hurt the feelings of those who did lose somebody in the war.

THE SLOUCH HABIT.

Tramps and loafers and the slovenly, says the Goshen Democrat, slouch along the highways and byways of life because they lack that self-respect which braces a man's shoulders and inspires others to say of him, "He's no slouch." It is undoubtedly true that the slouch habit is often a mental attitude. It is a habit of mind as well as of body, and reflects slack thinking and slack muscles from self-coddling indulgence and a bent and twisted philosophy of life.

On the other hand, the swagger of the bully, the strut of the conceited and vain, indicate the need for more backbone and less chest. There is time enough at the dawn and dusk of life for this slouching and sagging. The new-born baby is unable to hold itself erect; its head topples over, its back is rounded with the weakness natural to infancy. Old age, worn and near the end of the journey, is bent and bowed with the burdens of a long life and with the weariness of years.

Criminals invariably slouch amidst the shadows and one wonders whether it is the life of crime that makes the slouch or if the slouch habit makes the criminal. That there is some connection between the two there can be no doubt.

Those who resent the Darwinian insinuation that they have a common ancestry with the ape should diversify their slouching by assuming the erect posture foreign to the ape family.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Preventing Suicides.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Jumping From the Monument," recalls to my mind that when a youth, resident of England, I read of a similar condition at the principal monument in London. Suicides from it became so numerous that the government had to screen the top to prevent them. I think any well-informed Londoner will verify this statement—perhaps the British embassy would have such information.

JOHN E. RASTALL.

A Champion of Calles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What a dirty, villainous, despicable sheet The Post has become—exuding its vile poison, lying propaganda and distortion of truth now against Mexico!

Calles has done more for Mexico than any other president in recent years. The Mexican people are strongly in favor of him, notwithstanding the efforts of the hierarchy, K. C.s and others, to stir up trouble.

Cease your dirty vituperation! The United States will not break off relations with Calles. LESLIE SHORE.

What Price Apple Sauce?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a letter to The Post which appeared on Wednesday, Frank W. Bird calls attention to the enormous crop of apples that is going to waste in Tennessee and Virginia. He also points out the wide spread between the price at which the fruit is offered by the grower and the price asked by the proprietors of the fruit stands in Washington. Mr. Bird further suggests that there might be a much larger sale, and inferentially a greater demand, if the fruit was offered "at 1 to 2 cents each."

Thus again is brought to the attention of the public the great spread between cost of farm products at the point of production and the amount demanded from the consumer. How to reduce this spread is a question which has bothered the farmer, the merchant and the Department of Agriculture for many years, and the solution still eludes them all.

The section of the country through which Mr. Bird traveled is not the only region where apples are literally rotting in thousand bushel lots. All through the North the same thing is noted, but there is apparently no remedy for this condition. Apples are a glut in every country market. Cold storage warehouses are filled with fruit, the evaporators have an oversupply, and the cider mills are running to capacity. As to the difference between the farm price and the fruit stand price, which seems so marked to "the ultimate consumer," that party to the transaction probably never stops to figure out the items which go to explain that spread.

For his enlightenment there is here given the actual cost of shipping 20 bushels of apples from western New York to Washington a few weeks ago: The picker received 30 cents a bushel, or $6.00; the containers—and they were second-hand—cost $3.00; cartage from orchard to railroad, $2.50; freight, $6.58; delivery charges in Washington, $2.50; making the total, $19.98 for handling 20 bushels from grower to middleman. The latter has rent and help to pay, and no inconsiderable loss from spoilage. Is it surprising, therefore, that apples which can be bought at 50 cents a bushel in the orchards fetch six times that figure when purchased as fillings for Thanksgiving pies? J. F. HARMER.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur have with them for the Thanksgiving holidays their daughter, Miss Edna Wilbur, who will remain in Washington over Sunday.

The Ambassador of Belgium, Baron de Cartier, will arrive in Washington Sunday. Baroness de Cartier, who is in New York with the Ambassador attending the horse show, in which a number of Belgian officers are taking part, will remain there a few days longer.

The Ambassador of Germany and Baroness Maltzan entertained at dinner last evening at the embassy in honor of the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Cruchaga.

The Counselor of the Spanish embassy, Senor Don Eduardo Garcia Comin, has been transferred to Paris where he will hold the post of first secretary. Senor and Senora Garcia Comin gave up their apartment at the Wardman Park hotel Wednesday and will sail from New York today.

V. A. Drignakovich, attache of the legation of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, entertained yesterday at luncheon in Carlton hotel in honor of the Minister, Dr. A. Treshch Pavlovich, and the staff of the legation.

Navy Relief Ball.

Mrs. Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, headed the receiving line at the Navy Relief ball last night at the Willard, and was assisted by Mrs. Edward W. Eberle, wife of Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, and chairman of the ball. Mrs. Benjamin Hutchison, wife of the commandant of the navy yard and president of the relief society in Washington, and Mrs. John A. Lejeune, wife of the major general commandant of the marine corps.

Capt. Wilson Brown, aid to the President, presented the guests to the receiving line. Mrs. Thomas Kincaid was chairman of the debutante committee, and Rear Admiral William R. Shuford, assisted by Capt. Puleston and a committee of officers from all branches of the service, was in charge of the ballroom. The ball is given each year on Thanksgiving night by the navy women of the Washington branch of the Navy Relief society, an organization which was founded by Admiral Dewey to give emergency aid to the wives and children of the men of the navy and marine corps.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Wilbur entertained in their box at the ball Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Paist, of Philadelphia, and the Secretary's aid, Capt. Halsey Powell, and Mrs. Powell.

Admiral and Mrs. Eberle had as their guests in a box at the ball their niece, Miss Elizabeth Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Charles North, of Providence R. I., and their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. E. R. Eberle.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin Hutchison entertained in their box the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. John A. Lejeune, Dr. and Mrs. William Mather Lewis, Admiral Hutchison's aid, Lieut. Comdr. C. F. Greene and Mrs. Greene, and Mr. George M.

Weaver, of Utica, N. Y., brother of Mrs. Hutchison, who arrived yesterday to pass a few days here.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles McVay entertained at dinner preceding the ball, when their guests were their nephews and nieces, and Mrs. Turner Joy, their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Charles McVay; Commander and Mrs. R. F. Dillan, an Mrs. McVay's sister, Miss Reno. Later they attended the ball. Admiral and Mrs. McVay sharing a box with Rear Admiral and Mrs. Joseph Strauss. Rear Capt. and Mrs. Hayne Ellis entertained in their box Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owsley, Col. W. E. Fay and Miss Martha Lamar Ellis.

Guests of Mrs. Walsh.

Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh entertained in her box the Minister of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Fierlinger; Col. and Mrs. Charles Drake, the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Everett Sanders, Mrs. Robert Henderson and Mrs. John Allan Dougherty.

Gift Ties

Selected by a Man for Men

This year "He" is sure of liking his gift Ties if you have bought them here, because a Man with just as fine taste as "His" own has already put his mark of approval on them—has selected the patterns from hundreds of others and selected patterns that will lend a distinctive touch to a Man's attire.

Diagonal and horizontal stripes, diamonds, checks, scatter effects, faded plaids, hand blocked and printed silks, and the famous Resilio Cravats are but a portion of the variety from which a Tie for every Man can easily be selected.

WOMAN TO EXPLAIN PLAN LINKING HOME AND WORK

Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth to Address Professional Pan-Hellenic Association.

HEADS ENGINEER CONCERN

How a woman is able to manage a big business, a home and her eleven children all at the same time and make a success of all three will be explained in detail today at the meeting of the National Professional Pan-Hellenic association at the Grace Dodge hotel.

Mrs. Ethel P. Howes, director of

Grandmother Knew

there was nothing so good for congestion and colds as mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered.

Musterole gives the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuritis, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frostbite, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

Better than a mustard plaster

Smith's College Institute for the reconciliation of women's interests, who have been gathering information on how professional women have met the problems attendant upon a combination of career and home, will lead the discussion.

Mrs. Gilbreth says that her success was chiefly a matter of generalship, intelligent planning and cooperation of the family. Up until the death of her husband two years ago she worked with him and together they planned every detail of their business and household affairs so that both establishments would function efficiently. At his death she became the head of both firms.

Dr. Louise Stanley, of the United States bureau of home economics, is president of the association.

JEWES WILL CELEBRATE CHANUKAH NEXT WEEK

Feast of Lights, Commemorating Victory Over Syrian King, Starts Tuesday.

EIGHT-DAY CELEBRATION

Chanukah, the feast of dedication, or the feast of lights, commemorating the victory of the Jews in 168 B. C. over the Syrian king, Antiochus IV, when the latter attempted to force the Greek religion on them, will be celebrated beginning next Tuesday at sundown and will continue eight days.

Antiochus attempted to emulate Alexander the Great, but the Jews banded together, first under the leadership of the old priest, Mattathias, and later under his son, Judas Maccabeus, to resist not only the soldiers of the Syrian king, but his idea to force the Jews to accept and worship the various Greek gods instead of their own God, Jehovah.

The first celebration throughout all synagogues in Washington will be the lighting of the first of eight candles. The candles also will be lighted in the homes. Each day of the eight days of celebration and feasting a new candle will be lighted until on the last day eight are lighted and a special reading will be recited in the synagogues, but the holiday nevertheless is regarded as a minor feast.

Most of the synagogues will hold only evening services. The Jewish Community center will hold celebrations during the day.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CHILDREN hate to be dosed with medicine. Vicks VapoRub relieves colds, without dosing, in two ways at once. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages and lungs;

(2) At the same time it acts through the skin like an old-fashioned ointment, "drawing out" the pain, tightness and soreness.

TRASH vs. TRUTH

A cheap seeker of notoriety and money waits for a President of the United States to die and writes scandalous lies about him, interwoven with fiction and trash.

Such writers rarely have the courage to publish such libels during the life of their subject, but hope they will be believed because death prevents a personal verbal defense.

America has some of the world's best writers, and, thank God, it is only an occasional seeker of cheap notoriety who stoops so low.

As that fine character of a man, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of the New York diocese, once said to me: "God will bless those who do kind acts and speak kindly of their neighbors."

But what do evilmongers and libelers know of God?

FORMER SENATOR ELKINS MARRIES CAPITAL WOMAN

KEPT SECRET SINCE MAY

The marriage last May of former Senator Davis Elkins, of West Virginia, millionaire clubman, and Miss Mary Reagan, of 2614 Cathedral avenue northwest, was announced yesterday by Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, mother of the former senator, at her home, 1626 K street northwest.

The announcement of the marriage, kept secret for seven months, came as a distinct surprise to Washington society. The former senator was regarded as one of the most eligible bachelors in Washington.

The bride, it is understood, had high aspirations of stardom on the stage and left Washington about three years ago for New York. One of her first appearances on the stage was made as a member of the chorus of the Dillingham musical production, "The Night Boat." Following an extended appearance in this production, the bride appeared in several other shows in New York.

She became acquainted with the former senator about three years ago. Miss Reagan, regarded as a beauty, left the stage shortly after her acquaintance with Mr. Elkins. The marriage culminated a courtship of more than two years.

Mr. Elkins and his bride, who came to Washington for a short visit last Friday, are making their home in a New York apartment, according to Mrs. Elkins.

The former senator is 50 years old, and the age of his bride is given as 29. Mr. and Mrs. Elkins left Washington Wednesday, taking the bride's mother, Mrs. Catherine Reagan, with them as their Thanksgiving guest.

The bride is unknown to Washington society. She lived with her mother before going on the stage. Mr. Elkins is connected with the New York brokerage firm of Keach & Kelley. He is the owner of several large coal and lumber firms in West Virginia. While serving in France during the world war as a major of infantry, the bridegroom was elected to the Senate, serving between 1919 and 1925.

Skvirsky Has Hopes for Russia. Although Russia will suffer a great loss by the death of Leonid Krasin, Russian soviet diplomatic representative in London, a younger generation is springing up in Russia capable of great things, and prepared for high diplomatic and administrative posts, Boris E. Skvirsky, director of the Russian information bureau, asserted here last night.

SHADE OF JOHN RODGERS SPURS PANAMA AVIATORS

was plowing along yesterday under tow of the light cruiser Cincinnati, 13 miles south of the point where she was picked up by the Cincinnati, headed for Guantanamo bay at a speed of 8 knots.

Lieut. Connell reported that all members of the crew were well. He said the plane would need a new starboard engine and asked that equipment be sent him at Guantanamo to install the engine. A connecting rod in this motor had broken after the crew had struggled against a feverish oil pressure, forcing the ship down 245 miles south of the Isle of Pines.

Strangely enough, two of the crew of the PN-10 No. 1, which was hunted for fourteen and one-half hours Wednesday before the Cincinnati picked her up at 9:35 p. m., had shared privation with John Rodgers on the memorable Honolulu flight. They were Lieut. Connell and Skiles R. Pope, aviation pilot.

With only meager details in their possession, aeronautic officials were at a loss yesterday to explain why the No. 1 ceased communication with her guard ships and why the No. 2 ran out of lubricating oil. The navy bureau of aeronautics was inclined to assign the failure of the PN-10 to insufficiency of seaplane motor power to meet the requirements imposed by the staunchness and weight of hydroaeronautics.

So far as could be told from the short messages signaled from the planes as they sped south, the navigators were doing all they could to get maximum performance from the motors. Bartlett, steering his plane 1,186 miles before descending, and when Connell was forced down it was calculated he had traversed 1,448 miles.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, not the least discouraged by the results, said the flight showed the navy had yet to solve certain problems in engine building to increase the range of her heavy planes.

"We'll keep trying," he said. "It will be noticed the new planes performed beautifully as to seaworthiness. None of our boys was any the worse off for his adventure."

OFFICER OF WRECKED BANK IS PARDONED

Virgilina Assistant Cashier Eats Thanksgiving Meal With His Family.

Special to The Washington Post. Danville, Va., Nov. 25.—Henry Ford, assistant cashier of the wrecked bank of Virgilina, ate Thanksgiving dinner there today with his wife and three children. He was pardoned yesterday by Gov. Byrd after serving two years of a four-year sentence. Thomas G. Poole, cashier, is still serving a fifteen-year term. The bank crash left stark poverty over a wide section in its wake. Poole, it was shown had speculated with the bank's funds for several years but had so concealed the speculation that bank examiners were hoodwinked. When an entry was questioned a $10,000 shortage was found. Then came an intensive audit and the deficit jumped first to $100,000 and to $238,000 and it was found the bank was wrecked. Ford pleaded guilty and said he had obeyed orders.

Poole said he was the victim of his friends, the day before his trial he went to a Richmond hospital. He was ordered taken from Richmond to Halifax court on a stretcher and he was tried on his back and convicted quickly.

SECOND LOVE

By MALCOLM DUART.

(Copyright, 1926, Eugene MacLean.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Here are the questions presented in "Second Love." Will John Parrish come back to his rich, young wife, Audrey, whom he has left because of the troubles that follow the marriage of a poor young man and a wealthy girl? Or will he turn to Marie Allen, his wife's young and lovely guest, who vigorously "trumped" him, and then joined him when Audrey's handsome father, Harry Morton, responded to her advances? Will Marie Allen marry Morton, or will Nona marry him? Nona, the famous stage dancer, who also is Audrey's guest? Morton has secured Parrish a low-salaried job with an electrical concern, and has so arranged it that he comes to Audrey's house to spend a large installation. As the last chapter ends, Audrey hears Marie talking to Parrish in her room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

(Name and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XLVIII.

THIS was Marie's husband and another woman—a woman whose accents were alluring—a pretty woman. Audrey flattened herself against the wall, straining her ears to hear.

One of the workmen was chattering at the door. When the sound ceased, Marie continued:

"It must be lovely to get back to your old home, isn't it, John?"

There was no answer. The workman hammered again.

"Won't you even smile at me?" Marie pursued. Still Parrish was silent.

Marie continued: "Come on, John—smile for the lady!"

Audrey could hear the noise of scrambling feet, and a bump as something upset.

Then her husband's voice. "Miss Allen, we are trying to work. I am only a workman here—I can't tell you to leave your room. But it will be a great favor if you do so."

Audrey heard a great sigh of relief and tiptoed back to her own room. Marie followed her a moment later.

"If that were my husband, I'd pull his hair," Marie said, sinking into a cretonne-covered rocker.

"Why would you abuse poor John?" Audrey asked, guiltlessly, regarding her guest.

"He needs it," Marie put her small foot on the dresser. "I went in there—thought I'd cheer him up. Asked him to smile for me, and what do you think he said? 'Miss Allen,' his voice was muffled. 'I am only a workman, but will you please go away?'"

Audrey found this very funny and shook with joy.

"You're an incurable vamp, Marie," she said, "but you'll never get a rise out of my John."

Marie surveyed her hostess, seemed about to speak, thought better of it and yawned instead.

"Please quit teasing him," Audrey continued. "He's liable to get up and leave—and I'll leave him forever."

"Tease him!" Marie gave something very like a snort. "I'll drop a brick on his head."

With this she arose and sought the lower floor of the house. Audrey returned to her desk and wrinkled her brow over a checkbook and a heap of bills.

Counting aloud she added columns of figures, subtracted others, made entries on the stubs of her checkbook and occasionally made out a check.

"Oh, goodness!" she cried at last. Pushing back from her desk, she viewed her accounts with dismay. "Going to the door she called: 'Nona!'"

"Coming," said the other girl's voice. In a moment Nona was leaning over the back of Audrey's chair. "What's the matter, dear?"

Nona laughed. "I help you? The sheriff would be around to take possession if I handled your accounts very long. Never knew a woman who could keep books—for herself, anyhow. They can do it in offices, and then they get married and overdraw an account first thing. What's wrong?"

Audrey rubbed her forehead. "I don't know. First, I have more money than I thought I had, and then I haven't any. Now I've got a big lot of bills here, and I can't tell if I can pay them or not. It's dreadfully puzzling."

Nona reached out her arm, and leafed over the stubs of the checkbook. "Why," she said, "this says you have $120.00."

"That's a mistake," confessed Audrey. "I forgot to subtract what I spent last month."

"How much was that?"

"I don't know—I had a little pocket checkbook, and lost that, and I don't know how much I spent." She took the heap of bills and crammed them into a drawer. "I'm not going to be bothered," she declared. "This is a nuisance. And daddy won't help me a bit!"

She dipped into another drawer, and brought out a handful of bonds, and a packet of stock certificates. "Daddy sent these to me from the office—said I'd have to collect the dividends and interest myself. But I don't know how."

Her visitor took the bright gold and blue and green folds of paper, and looked at them with deep interest.

"I think you're supposed to cut something off of them," she said.

"But suppose I cut off the wrong thing? And what do I do with it when I get it cut?"

"Send it to the company, maybe," said Nona, doubtfully. She gave back the securities. "You'd better do what I do."

Audrey looked up at her. "Keep everything you've got in money and jewels and clothes," Nona explained. "If you run out of money, pawn the jewels. That's easy, and it saves a lot of worry."

Audrey put her valuables away, and sighed.

"Maybe I'd better. It always seemed so easy to be rich, before John went away."

They went downstairs together, and out into the yard. They found Marie and Morton before the garage, where he was supervising the greasing of his new foreign car. The chauffeur's feet could be seen protruding from underneath the chassis.

"Thought I'd come home, to make sure I'd done right," Morton said. "First time we've been over it—lot of funny doo-dads to put grease in."

Marie was squatting on her heels, peering under the body of the car. Glancing up, she said, "Audrey, you're getting fat!"

Morton and Nona stared.

"I don't think so," she said.

Nona went to her, and passed her hand over Audrey's back and sides.

"You are, for a fact, child," she pronounced. "Don't you take any exercise?"

Audrey's eyes were startled. "Am I getting squabby?"

"You will be, pretty soon—and then what'll John think?" Marie inquired. "You don't get fat so easily."

"No more than brunettes," Nona declared. "But, Audrey, you're white, and soft. It doesn't hurt if you put on flesh the right way, but you know how a woman looks who wears her fat in soft chunks!"

"Horror!" gasped Audrey.

"How old are you?" Nona asked. "Twenty-one."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Come upstairs with me."

Audrey obeyed, surveying her arms and hips as she went into the house and ascended the stairs. In Nona's waist Marie winked after her. Nona lead the way into her dressing room, and closed the door.

"Look here," she said. Loosening her dress, she stooped over and placed the tips of her fingers to the floor. Then, slowly, she bent her body to the left, then backward, then to the right, and finally to the front again, without once lifting her fingers from their contact with the rug.

"Good!" Marie marveled. "I do that 40 times every morning and evening," Nona said. "Now look!"

She laid on her back, and tucking her feet in the air until she was standing on her shoulders, her legs straight upward. She lowered her feet, and raised them again. Then she was standing on her shoulders, until they touched the floor. With a lightning-like flip, she was standing erect again.

"I do that 40 times, too," she said. Audrey tried to imitate the two movements. After several breathless trials, she gave up.

"I can't do any of it," she said. She was sitting on the floor, and Nona was sitting on the stage, and she said, "I'm not going to try 'em, I haven't got to hold a husband—yet. But I'll tell you this, Audrey, wife has to offer man a good time. You don't work for him, because you don't have to work. And now you're fixing it so you won't look pretty. I think you'd better begin to stir around and do something, if you want to keep that boob."

Audrey looked up distressfully, from the floor.

"I can buy him things," she declared.

"Oh, put that on ice—can't it!" cried Marie.

"Hush!" Nona chimed in. "No man who is worth a rap wants his wife to be a pushover. He wants her to be a woman who is worth a rap."

"Hush!" Nona chimed in. "No man who is worth a rap wants his wife to be a pushover. He wants her to be a woman who is worth a rap."

Audrey's hands dropped, palms upward, on the rug. "Then what can I do," she wailed.

"Forget you've got any money," advised Marie. "And find out what he likes to do, and help him do it—let on like the thing you're fond of in the whole world. And you'd better get Nona to show you how to keep from getting flabby. If you don't you'll be a wheezy, old woman while he's still a young man."

Audrey shuddered. "I must be a total loss!"

"Pretty near," Marie said, cheerfully. "Now me, I'll jolly 'em, and keep 'em happy, until I'm eighty."

She turned to Nona. "Men love to be wined and dined," she said. "Then, she added, demurely, "Harry has invited me out with him tonight." Nona started. The other girl went on: "It's the first chance we've really had to be alone together since you came, Nona, dear."

Puzzles Exchanged At a Novel Shop

New York, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Puzzles sold and exchanged here, says a shop window sign. Thus, the puzzle you bought for spare time amusement last winter doesn't have to be relegated to the attic after you've learned to solve it.

For who would always stay a child or cling to twenty's charms? Youth quits the field where sport has smiled.

To face the world's alarms. The happiest days are never fled. For if the truth were told, Each one of us still looks ahead And hopes he shall be old.

(Copyright, 1926, Edgar A. Guest.)

It is truly perplexing. It seems necessary to have more than one of these ensembles because of color schemes. The bird on the umbrella and the one on the pocket book aren't of the same family but are both of tortoise shell and galalith. Obviously they should be mated.

It was pouring. That's why Mitzi wouldn't consider getting her pocket book trimmed with lizard skin, wet. Mitzi usually carries an umbrella to keep it from raining, if this doesn't work, well; taxi, please.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

His Honor.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a soldier in the United States Army. Before I joined the army I had been keeping company with a girl for six months. I liked her very much, and I matter myself by saying that the girl likes me also, as I correspond with her now and her letters lead me to think so.

She is seventeen years old and is very good-looking, and is a nice companion. Until last Thursday I had thought of no other girl but her.

My duty led me to attend a fair October 13 to 16. As I was walking through the fair grounds I picked up a girl's pocketbook which she dropped, and was at once attracted by her beauty. She had the face of an angel, and I must admit it was a case of love at first sight. I started a conversation with her, and we continued around the fair grounds together. I took her over to the place where our horses were picketed and showed her our prize stock. Then we went back to her, and I said good-by to her, as she was with her brother, and he wanted to get home early as he had to go to work the next day. She promised to see me the next day. She was coming down to the fair with her mother and sisters. I met her the next day and she acted dishonorably.

JOHN.

John, dear, you have acted only naturally. The very fact of your present predicament proves how much you need to know many girls before selecting one for life. There is nothing in the least dishonorable in your present course, and much that is intelligent and right. Just consider that you have acted one more friend to your list. Do not speak of love, but just learn to know and to observe the many charms of many girls. Eventually you will select just one—and for herself, not for her beauty. And, strangely enough, that one may be the girl you left behind! Yes, sir, that happens often, not so often, now, isn't that funny!

John, dear, you have acted only naturally. The very fact of your present predicament proves how much you need to know many girls before selecting one for life. There is nothing in the least dishonorable in your present course, and much that is intelligent and right. Just consider that you have acted one more friend to your list. Do not speak of love, but just learn to know and to observe the many charms of many girls. Eventually you will select just one—and for herself, not for her beauty. And, strangely enough, that one may be the girl you left behind! Yes, sir, that happens often, not so often, now, isn't that funny!

JOHN.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

AUCTION BRIDGE is a partnership game. The most essential requirements for success is cooperation, and when using the double the necessity for perfect partnership understanding is even greater than at any other time. The worst bridge facilities occur when one partner misunderstands the meaning of a double made by the other. The doubler and the doubler's partner must speak and understand the same bridge language, or they will Babelize their game. If a player, about to double, fears that his partner may be in doubt as to the meaning, my advice is don't double.

The previous articles this week have treated of no trump doubles only; but today, in discussing the distinction between business and informational doubles, both no trump and suit-bids will be considered. The distinction between business and informational doubles enters into the classification of the double. First, the size of the bid that has been doubled, second, whether the doubler's partner has previously bid or doubled; third, whether the doubler is doubling at the first opportunity.

Three conditions enter into the classification of the double. First, the size of the bid that has been doubled, second, whether the doubler's partner has previously bid or doubled; third, whether the doubler is doubling at the first opportunity. When a player has once shown his suit, it is not necessary for his partner to ask him to repeat that information, and when, by a double of any kind or a no-trump bid, he has once shown strength, his partner—if strong—probably will want to make a business double and penalize the adversaries. Therefore, after partner has bid or doubled, a double is business regardless of the size of the bid that is doubled. North's double in the following would be business because of West's previous double; South, one heart; West double; North, two hearts; East double. In the second case, if West had passed and West had bid two clubs, North's double would be informational; and in the second case, if West had passed instead of doubling, East's double would be informational.

The pointer for today is: Be sure that you can distinguish between business and informational doubles.

Tomorrow I will explain an important exception which most players make to the doubling rule.

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

WHISTLING IN PUBLIC.

I AM quite a good whistler myself and very fond of expressing my musical feelings in that way. So when I write about the times a person shouldn't whistle, any one who reads my belated I am writing fairly. I do not think it good manners for elevator boys to whistle—no matter how delectably—when taking people up and down. It has a careless, casual appearance which isn't good for business. Certainly in a smart business building, whistling has no place. There's nothing wrong in it, but it's bad manners. So it is for a messenger boy to come into a private house or an office whistling. I'm only talking these young men and boys what I would tell my own nephews, if they needed to be told, that gentlemen would be trained not to do it.

Whistling in the room where people are trying to write is maddening. I am not busy, and constantly infuriated by it when I am. It is also poor manners to whistle in the hall as you walk about, because, again it has that air of discipline which good business etiquette avoids.

Indeed, any off-hand, negligent, easy attitude of mind and body when doing daily work in cars, taxicabs, elevators, offices, behind counters or when accompanying customers and clients about, is a mistake from the point of view of smart business behavior. Not long ago I took a taxicab in the rain, a nasty, soaking rain, and these are the universal brother and sisterhood enforced by democracy the lady may well say so. Most democrats have no idea of the self-restraint practiced by aristocrats from their drilled childhood upward.

WRINKLES ON FOREHEAD

YESTERDAY I saw a very young girl who had vertical wrinkles between her eyes, as deep as though the wrinkles were made of the so-called "scow" wrinkles, and, if I had obeyed my best humanitarian impulses, I should have gone straight up to her and told her what to do about them.

To begin with, any one who develops either horizontal or vertical

CATHOLICS BEAT G. W.; MARYLAND DOWNS HOPKINS; BROWN AND COLGATE TIE; HOWARD ROUTS LINCOLN

Bruins' Claim To Title Is Fogged

Two Long Runs Score Touchdowns for Old Rivals.

New York Team Foils Vaunted Air Play of Favorites.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 25 (A. P.).—A rugged Colgate eleven, long a thorn in the side of Brown's championship aspirations in the many years of traditional rivalry, today in a thrilling 10-0 tie again smashed the Bear's hope of an undisputed claim to Eastern gridiron supremacy.

The eleven men who had driven Brown to top ranking with nine straight victories this season, fought desperately for victory and an unblemished record. But the first that carried the team to smashing conquests over Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth died in the face of Colgate's fierce defense, the Maroon's complete subjection of the vaunted Brown forward-passing game, and Mitchell's failure to control his usually reliable toe when three field goal chances offered opportunities to break the deadlock in the final period.

Not the least of Brown's troubles was the brilliant kicking of Dumont, husky Colgate guard, who, time after time, trotted into the backfield to hoist twisting spirals 60 yards down the field. Matching Dumont's accomplishments, Williamson, the center, twice fell back to drop-kick Maroon points, once with a field goal from the 33-yard line.

Just as history of last year repeated itself, when the ancient rivals battled to a 14-14 tie, so memories freshened of a similar Colgate feat ten years ago, when Brown's march to a national title was halted in the final game by an underdog Colgate eleven.

Two spectacular dashes led directly to the Brown and Colgate touchdowns after Mitchell had tied the score at three early in the third period with a sharp-angled field goal from the 35-yard line. Lawrence, brilliant Brown

Bisons Close Grid Season Unbeaten

16,000 Watch District Team Amass Points on Visitors.

Rep. Madden Dedicates New Stadium; Smith Is Star.

THE Bison eleven of Howard university crushed the Lincoln Lions yesterday at the Howard stadium before a gay crowd of 16,000 ardent football enthusiasts, to the tune of 32-0. It was the first victory of the local varsity squad over the Oxfordians since 1920. While intense rivalry marked the struggle, the issue never was in doubt. Howard closed the season unbeaten, her goal line crossed but once, indisputably on top of the colored football world.

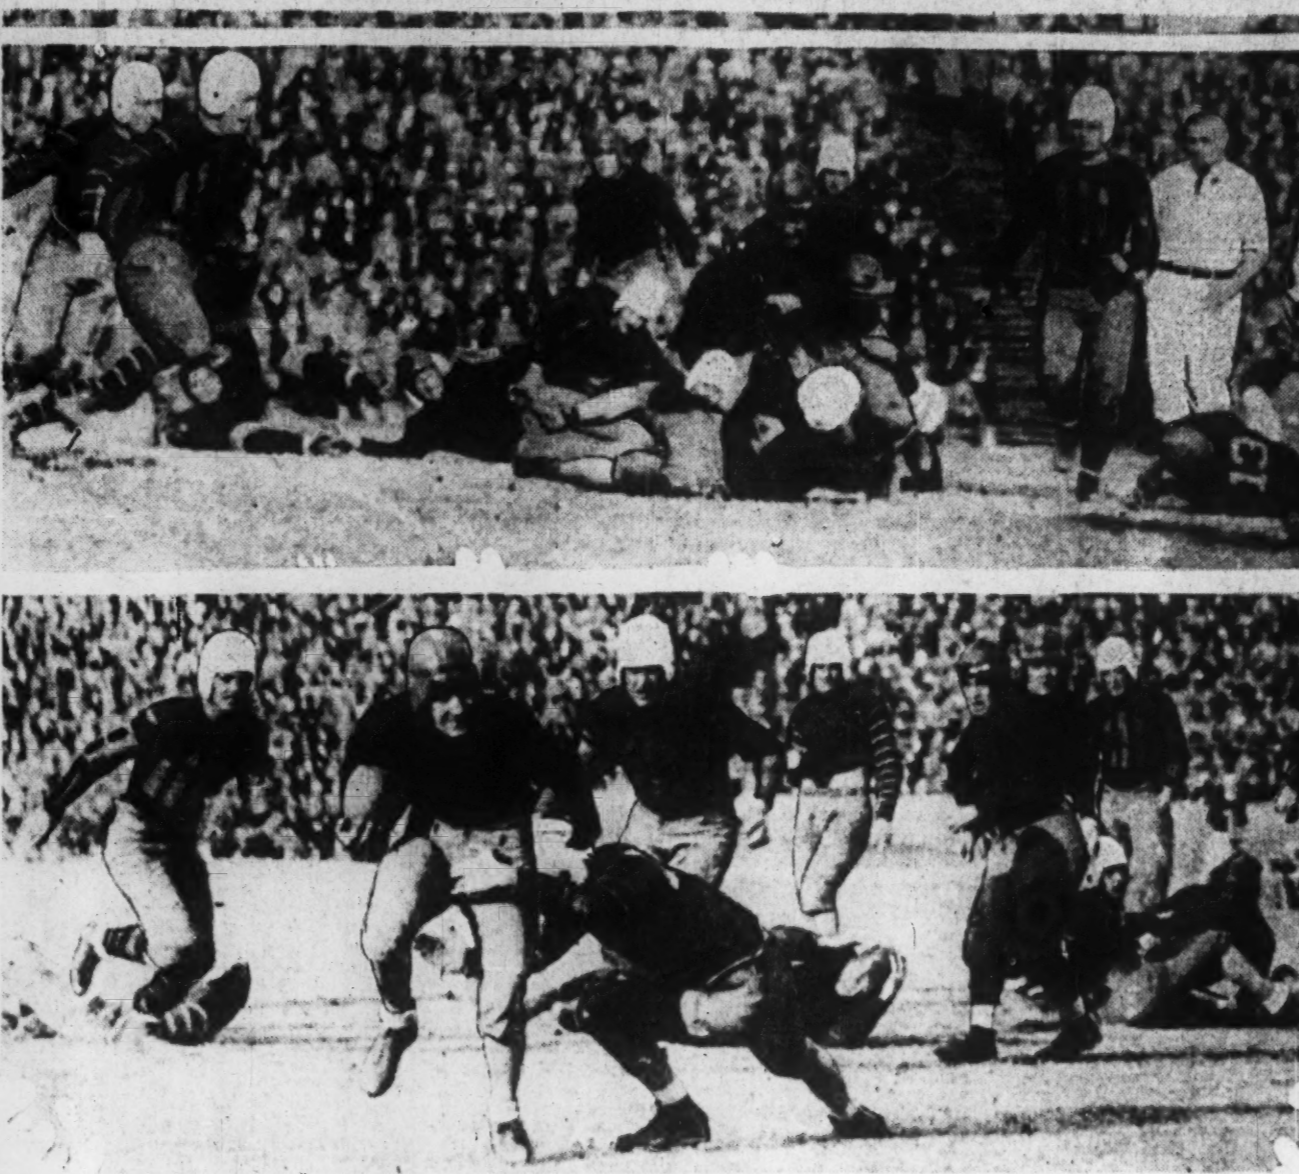

The Bisons acquitted themselves like matinee idols and showed their football prowess from the first whistle, scoring their initial touchdown in nine minutes of play. Then shifting into high gear, they repeated the performance four times. It was a gala day for those who relish football that is colorful and the emotional gymnastics attendant the annual collision of two teams which is the classic of negro American college.

Before an assembly of 16,000, the Howard band, led by Sgt. Dorsey Rhodes, marched on the gridiron at 1 p. m. for the dedication of the new stadium and gymnasium-armory project by Representative Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, chairman of the House appropriations committee.

An amplifier and stand had been provided in the center of the field. Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, Howard university president, presiding, introduced Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary of the board of athletic control, who gave a brief history of the stadium-gymnasium-armory project. In process of development seventeen years, representing finally an outlay of $301,000. Greetings from the Howard board of athletic control were extended by E. P. Davis, president.

HARVEY RUNS WILD THROUGH GEORGE WASHINGTON DEFENSE

After catching Foley's passes and in runs from scrimmage, Bill Harvey reeled of gain after gain for Catholic university yesterday. At top he is shown being tackled by Capt. Sapp, of the Cardinals' secondary defense after breaking through the line. Below—Harvey is off on a run after snaring a heave from his team mate.

Capt. Stevens Cardinals Win, Is Hero For Byrdmen

Field Goal in Waning Minutes Wins for Old Line, 17-14.

Baltimoreans' 14-Point Lead Is Wiped Out in Second Half.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 25.—Rallying in the third quarter and continuing a drive led by Capt. Stevens in the closing period, Maryland University's eleven came from behind here today and defeated Johns Hopkins, its old gridiron rival, by 17 to 14, the margin of victory resulting from a 17-yard goal booted by the doughty Maryland leader.

Seldom, if ever, has the Baltimore stadium been the scene of as sensational a battle made by a trailing team as Maryland put up in the third quarter. The 20,000 spectators watched spell-bound while the black-jerseyed athletes from College Park fought their way up to even terms by scoring a pair of touchdowns and making the extra points. And those fans hardly caught their breath before Maryland went on and won the game.

No Maryland football team has displayed the dogged fighting spirit against Hopkins in the past four years as did the gang Coach Curley Byrd trotted out today. It returned to the field after the half intermission trailing by 14 points, but overcame the handicap in less than ten minutes by an attack which swept Hopkins off its feet.

Stevens, who did not get into the game until the second quarter, when Hopkins was riding swiftly ahead on a wave of success, gave to the Maryland team a spark that touched off what seemed to be a ton of dynamite. For thereafter the College Park players mauled the Blue Jays unmercifully, sustaining drives in the third quarter took Maryland over the goal line each time. "Knocky" Thomas, the "fritz" of Manchester, Vt., one up, scored the touchdowns, and Stevens added the extra points with drop-kicks.

Although it was Thomas who ended these parades goalward by plunging across the final stripe, the burden of the passing which was successful fourteen times out of twenty. He twice appeared blocked by Hopkins tacklers, but managed to slip from their grasp and find his mark in the persons of 10,000 Given Thrills as Passes, Punts and Fumbles Figure.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICIL, Sports Editor, The Post.

TEN thousand Washingtonians in holiday attire were served a football feast at Brookland stadium yesterday and saw the Catholic university team carve itself the major portion of the feast in the annual game with George Washington University. The 10,000 draped themselves about the natural bowl of the stadium, the varied hues of the coats and the sprinkling of fair fans vying in point of color with the cardinal of Catholic university's warriors as they plucked a 17-to-9 victory from the Thanksgiving day's festivities.

Catholic university's embattled gridmen, who were closing a season of indifferent success, engineered a happy climax yesterday in a game that was replete with every element of football and in which they were forced to rally from early reverses that gave George Washington a 9-point lead before the first half had ended.

The 10,000 in the howl saw football in all its collegiate rivalry, its tense situations, with open play predominating, but with mass attacks called into play when precious yards were to be gained.

Ray Foley and Bill Harvey presented Catholic university with its defeat, and George Washington with its defeat. These backfield mates of the Cardinals assumed command when matters looked dark for Catholic U. and led their team to the heights in a flurry of forward passes that dashed the secondary defense of George Washington's Colonials and scored one touchdown, paved the way for another and placed the team in position for its field goal.

Ray Foley threw the passes that defeated George Washington. And that proved an effective combination. Ray Foley threw long passes, he threw short passes, he threw them high and he threw them low. Some he threw in baseball fashion that skimmed the line of scrimmage and settled in the arms of some team mate on a trajectory that was little more than a straight line.

Bill Harvey handled Foley's heaves with the art of a master. He leaped for them, he dove for them, he raced hither and yon to gather them in and he caught them for long gains and short gains and intermediate gains that reeled off first down after first down for the Cardinals.

Pitted against this masterful passing duo was Capt. Henry Sapp, of the Colonials. Capt. Sapp strove valiantly to launch a passing attack for his team. But he succeeded only partially. George Washington's receivers could not match Bill Harvey, of Catholic U., and most of Sapp's efforts were knocked down or intercepted.

W. & J. BEATS W. VIRGINIA, 13 TO 3

Presidents Rally and Win After Keefe's Kick Ties Score.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Presenting a powerful and varied running attack that slowly but surely crushed the lighter West Virginia University eleven, West Virginia and Jefferson took the twenty-fifth annual Thanksgiving day clash with the Mountaineers here today, 13 to 3. The game was hard fought throughout.

During the first quarter the West Virginians checked two threatened drives, but the third time Washington and Jefferson gathered in three points when Edward's kick, from a difficult angle, went through the uprights.

West Virginia tied the tally in the second quarter, Keefe booting a placement.

The Presidents took the lead near the middle of the third period when Ames kicked a placement, and they held on to this slender lead until the game moved into its closing minutes, when a series of plays by Heisel, Cook and Kirkman, snubbing for Capt. Ames, paved the way for the latter to make a touchdown. Edwards made the extra point.

ARMY PICKED TO WIN; NOTABLES GATHERING FOR ANNUAL BATTLE

Squads Avoid Crowds Annapolis Turns Out by Detaining in Suburbs.

Experts at Gate Will Adm. Nulton and Governor Head Notables on Trip.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—In the city, football squads of the United States military and naval academies came to Chicago today and viewed the huge stadium where 100,000 persons will watch them battle Saturday.

The Navy squad, arriving in early afternoon, detrained at the Englewood suburban station, and went from there to the hotel where they will stay during the week. The men ran up and down the hill a few times, and then went to the hotel Windermere for the Thanksgiving dinner which awaited them.

The Army contingent, reaching the city on the heels of the midshipmen, also quit its train outside the business district to avoid the ovation which was waiting downtown, and was taken late in the afternoon to the hotel where Saturday's game. Then the cadets hastened to the South Shore Country club, not to mingle until they start to the stadium Sunday.

Tomorrow morning the student bodies of the two schools will arrive to find themselves in the center of two days of festivity occasioned by the game. They will take part tomorrow in the dedication of soldiers field, at which Vice President Charles G. Dawes will make the principal address.

Governors, senators, cabinet officials and other notable guests will come to the city tomorrow. Many of them will attend the dinner at the hotel where tomorrow night by the city to the visiting service men of the two schools.

Most of the through which will attend, at the two student bodies are expected, care little who wins, and is attending for the spectacle it hopes to see. Social leaders and the former persons with little interest in scientific football will be in the front seats for the game.

Mayor William E. Dever met both football squads today, and assured them of the city's desire to make their stay pleasant. The mayor was also scouting about tonight for a mule to symbolize the cadet host at the game.

The Navy, more fortunate, is beginning its goat along, and if the favored Navy suffers from the trip, several Navy cadets are expected to substitute animals which they are holding in leash.

Cherry Tree Lands

Tia Juana Feature

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Cherry tree, owned by John Long, San Diego sportsman, won the $2,000 Thanksgiving handicap at a mile and 70 yards, which featured the opening day program of the race meeting at the Tia Juana track today.

Sure Fire placed, a neck behind the winner, with Bonnie Omar two lengths back for show. There was a 1-44 Jockey R. Baker was in the saddle on the winner.

Zbyszko Matched

To Grapple Hanson

Only one more match remains to be arranged to complete the three-bout wrestling card to be offered Tuesday night at the Arena, which is headed by Ivan Linow and Tommy Drann. Hanson is the man who had to retire for several years after encountering a severe wrist injury. The elder brother, when Stanislaus was champion of the world. Then Hanson, who was just breaking into the wrestling game, suffered a severe wrist injury and only managed to get himself into form again for grappling competition. The promoter, Black, expects to complete his card tomorrow.

PREP ELEVEN BEATEN BY WASHINGTON

Workman's Placement Kick Beats Southern Preps, 3-0.

Scores 2 Touchdowns as Quantico Beats Washington, 13-0.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—Jim Levey, a youthful halfback on the Quantico Marines football team, possessing the speed of a champion shortback sprinter, needed no squad of runners to lend him helping hands in rushing both the first line of Washington defense and the secondary defense this afternoon at the stadium.

The Quantico team, which was not been seen at the stadium this season, and as a result of his sprint the Quantico team won from Washington, 13 to 0.

Washington surprised every one by a wonderful display of defensive strength, especially in the first quarter of the game. So well did the Bears show in the opening period of the battle that the Quantico team, which pulled out of the West Street stadium shortly before 1:30 o'clock, each train was made up of twelve day coaches. The Bears, who took on the Quantico team, were routed through the streets of the city to the stadium, where they were met by a large crowd of spectators.

Admiral Nulton, superintendent of the academy; Mrs. Nulton and her daughter, Dorothy Nulton, and Capt. Stanciel O'Connell, commandant of midshipmen, and Mrs. O'Connell were among those on a special car attached to the midshipmen's special.

Likewise, Gov. A. C. Ritchie, United States Senator-elect William T. Tridings and a large party of friends of the governor also were on the special car which was hooked up to the Capital limited upon arrival at Washington. The governor is scheduled to deliver an address before the Congress at Chicago tomorrow and is expected to touch upon national issues.

Fewer than 100 Annapolis fans aside from the naval contingent will be on the heels of the midshipmen. The long trip and consequent heavy expense was a barrier in decided contrast to former years when the games have been played in New York or Philadelphia. East Navy athletic authorities have made ample plans to take care of the game, and the city of Washington is expected to be the scene of a great day.

Despite the Navy's defeat last season and the tendency of the "experts" to regard it as a favorite, Chicago sentiment favors the army and betting odds are in the cadet's favor, though only slightly.

Bradley Poly Eleven

In 24th Straight Win

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—Bradley Poly continued its string of consecutive victories to 24 here today after defeating Franklin College, 49 to 0, in a club cluttered with mud and water. Bradley scored two touchdowns in every period, using a varied attack in the plunging off-tackle drive and the punting of the ball.

Bradley's football career today with a record of having never called time out for injury, and the school and college play.

"Haven't Any License To Beat Army," Says Coach Ingram of Navy

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (By A. P.).—All members of the Navy's "All-American" football team, who are expected to beat the Army, today said they have no serious injuries on the squad.

Head Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram, "We have no serious injuries on the squad," he said before the game. "We are in good shape, and we are going to beat the Army. The Army team is full of old timers who were playing football before the war, and they are not in the best of shape."

He added that the "didn't know yet" about his line-up, and furthermore didn't know who would start in the backfield. He said that the "didn't know yet" about his line-up, and furthermore didn't know who would start in the backfield.

Shapley, the Navy's triple-threat star, who has been out with injuries, will probably play, but not in the backfield at quarter. He will probably be used at full, and as safety on the defense.

Hannegan is a candidate for the quarter's berth, while Caldwell will probably play one of the half positions. Hamilton is also believed to be a choice for back, as his footwork and passing will be needed.

Capt. Lawrence "Buff" Jones, head coach of the 1926 team, is expected to retire concerning his line-up, but he was not generally so pessimistic as the Navy mentor. Coach Jones said his team was in good shape, and that they were going to beat the Army.

Harry Wilson, former All-American Penn State star, is almost certain to start at one of the halfback positions. The Army, while Craig will probably be at the other, Harry Wilson will probably be at the other, and Capt. "Tuffy" Hewitt or Murrell will draw the fullback position.

NORTHERN JUNIORS WIN

The Northern Juniors defeated the Senators yesterday, 13 to 0. Ennor and Gordon starred for the winners, who want games for Sundays. Adm. Manager Hancock at Columbia 469-J, if interested.

PALACE BOWS TO HAWKS, 9 TO 0

Fee Colliere Puts His J. Sweeney Stars as "Little Indians" Win, 19-0.

By WILLIAM HAIGHT.

IN A hard fought battle at American league park yesterday, the Hawks took the measure of the Palace A. C. 9 to 0. The Indians took no chances with their lighter opponents in the first quarter and smothered practically all of Palace's plays. The Southwest warriors failed to register a single first down in this quarter while the Indians clicked off seven.

A 60-yard run in this period by Hawks' first, lally, field goal from the toe of "Fee" Colliere. The southwest gridiron tried for a field goal in the second quarter, when they were near the Hawks' goal, but both attempts of Marty Beck failed.

Nichols, grab bags; Mrs. Howard Gordon, games; Miss Rachel Wilson, fish pond; Mrs. Samuel Nifong, checking, and J. W. Bell, country store.

Members of the Southeast Business Men's association and Citizens association will act as reception committee. The carnival is being given for the benefit of the equipment fund of the Southeast Community center. Admission to the building will be 10 cents, and small additional charges will be made for the vaudeville entertainment and dancing. Free entertainment will include contest games, animal features and various exhibits. Members of the community will wear gay carnival costumes.

Coroner to Convene Inquest in Slaying

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt will conduct an inquest this morning in the killing of James Washington, colored, 26 years old, 1212 Eighth street northwest, who was found shot to death in an apartment at 816 Florida avenue northwest, early yesterday.

Police of the Eighth precinct are holding Moses Crawford, also colored, 39 years old, 51 Myrtle street northeast, who is charged with murder. Crawford is said to have remained in the apartment to await the arrival of police after the shooting. Washington clutched a pistol in his hand that had not been discharged, authorities said.

Noble to Describe Dirigible Pole Trip

Details of the record-making air journey of the Norge, semi-rigid dirigible, from Rome across the North Pole to Alaska, will be told by Gen. Umberto Noble, of Italy, before the National Geographic society in the Washington auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

Gen. Noble designed the Norge and commanded her during her record voyage. In the course of which landings were made in England, Norway, Russia and Spitzbergen and Alaska, where a landing was made in a storm which threatened to wreck the airship.

Council to Consider District Bills Tonight

The Citizens Advisory council of the Federation of Citizens Associations will meet in the board room of the District building at 7 o'clock tonight to act upon District legislation that will be recommended to Congress this session.

Among the bills the council will be asked to consider are those for establishment of a permanent and equitable fiscal relation between the District and Federal government; merger of the two traction systems; appropriation for the elimination of all steam railroad grade crossings and the repeal of the Boreland amendment.

Woman Recovering After Poison Dose

Mrs. Vincent Strynaky, 25 years old, 921 Maryland avenue southwest, is in a serious condition at Emergency hospital, after swallowing a quantity of poison at her home yesterday morning. Police allege the poison was taken with suicidal intent.

Policeman L. O. Scripture, of the Fourth precinct, said the woman went to her room and took the poison following a quarrel with her husband. Emergency hospital authorities say she will recover.

Boy on Bicycle Reported Missing.

Police yesterday were asked to look for Lois Mancuso, Jr., 15 years old, who disappeared from his home, 1211 Tenth street northwest, Wednesday night, riding a bicycle. He is described as having dark complexion and black hair, and wearing long trousers and a sweater.

Commissioners Fear Publicity Might Affect Cost of Land for Project.

Organization Open to All Men and Women of Section Is Proposed.

President Cuno H. Rudolph, of the District board of commissioners, yesterday sent to Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the public buildings commission, a letter asking aid in preparing from Congress an authorization to expend not to exceed $600,000 for a site for the new farmers' market. The letter did not name any particular site. Its text follows:

"The plans approved for the $500,000 building program of the United States government in the District of Columbia contemplates demolition of sheds now used as a farmers' produce market and the occupation of their site by a proposed new internal revenue building.

"This market is an important adjunct to the food distribution system of the District and when removed from its present location a site should be obtained for its relocation in another part of the city.

Have Location in Mind.

"The commissioners understand there will be introduced at the session of Congress which begins December 6, a bill having in view acquisition of land on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue between Third and Fifteenth streets and bounded on the south by the Mall.

"They have the honor to suggest that there be included in the bill an item authorizing the commissioners to acquire a new site for the farmers' produce market by purchase or condemnation at a cost not to exceed $600,000.

"The commissioners have in mind the location of such a site, but do not deem it advisable to name the location in the bill on account of the effect it might have on the price of land to be acquired. Any assistance you could render in this matter would be very much appreciated."

HEADACHE PROVES FRACTURED SKULL

Four-Day Pain Takes Victim to Hospital After Attack by Footpad.

A slight headache which Robert Staples, 22 years old, suffered for four days proved to be a fracture of the skull when he appeared at Emergency hospital for medical treatment. Police investigated the case yesterday, eight days after he was injured and discovered that he had been slugged and robbed of $7.

Staples, who lives and is employed on a dredge in Georgetown, was walking across the bridge at M and Twenty-sixth streets northwest when he was attacked and robbed by the footpad. Following the robbery Staples went to the dredge, where he remained at his work until Sunday.

Going to Emergency hospital, he complained to physicians of a persistent "headache." He is still in the hospital.

Program by Players Of Transfiguration

The Transfiguration Players, a new amateur dramatic group organized by the Rev. Irvin J. J. Quigley, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, Fourteenth and Gallatin streets northwest, made their debut yesterday when they presented a matinee and evening performance of "A Musical Revue," at the Park theater, beginning at 9 o'clock.

A program was presented consisting of fifteen songs, dance and novelty numbers, featuring Grace Carlton, Helen Gladman, Irvin Sullivan and Mary Stevens. Music was directed by Jessie Heilmuller, and the entire production was supervised by Mr. Quigley. The revue will be presented again tonight and tomorrow night at the Park theater, beginning at 9 o'clock.

Nativity Congregation To Hear Bishop Darst

Bishop Thomas C. Darst will preach the sermon in celebration of the twenty-third anniversary of the establishment of the Chapel of the Nativity, Massachusetts avenue and A street southeast, at the 11 a. m. services in the chapel Sunday.

Holy communion will be celebrated by the Rev. Enoch M. Thompson, vicar, at 7:30 a. m. The chapel was founded in 1903, and since two chapels, the Chapel of the Resurrection, Fifteenth and G streets northeast, and the Chapel of the Annunciation, in Randle Highlands, have been outgrowths of the Nativity chapel.

MAINE SENATE NOMINEE CLEARED IN FUND CASE

Secretary of State Holds That Charges of Excessive Expenses Failed.

HEARING IS CONCLUDED

Augusta, Maine, Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—The charges of excessive primary campaign expenditures against Arthur B. Gould, Republican nominee for United States senator, were dismissed by Secretary of State Frank W. Ball tonight, after two and a half hours deliberation on the evidence introduced in the hearing today.

"This is not an investigation, and the burden of proof rests on the complainant," said the Secretary of State in announcing his findings. "The proof introduced by the complainant falls far short of the standards set by authorities in such cases. The fact that the respondent, Mr. Gould, did not appear at the hearing can not be considered evidence of guilt."

Frederick W. Hinckley, counsel for the Republican nominee, declared in opening the hearing that Gov. Brewer had initiated the charges and asserted that a conference between the governor and Hiram W. Evans, Imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, had taken place in Washington, at which the charges were discussed.

Gov. Brewer, the first witness, representing Mr. Gould, said that he did not, of his own knowledge, know of any excessive expenditures by the Republican nominee. During the noon recess Gov. Brewer issued a denial of any connection with the Ku Klux Klan and asserted that he had not seen the charges in the case against Mr. Gould before they were filed.

The charge that Mr. Gould exceeded the legal limit of $1,500 in his primary campaign was made last Saturday by the Rev. Arthur F. Leigh, Randolph minister, an admitted Ku Klux Klan leader.

Mr. Leigh was questioned this afternoon.

WORK IS COMPLETED ON DEFENSE HIGHWAY

New Washington-Annapolis Route to Be Opened at Christmas.

Special to The Washington Post.
Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26.—Although it will not be opened to traffic until about Christmas day, actual work on the road bed of the National Defense highway between Annapolis and Washington was completed today. This new traffic artery will reduce the distance between the Maryland and National capitals by 123 miles. The new route to Washington will be 27.7 miles. The present roundabout course is 40 miles.

Hundreds of Washingtonians own summer cottages along the bay and river shores south of Annapolis. Completion of the highway so soon is due largely to James A. Walton, former president of the Annapolis and National commissioners and president of a local bank, who negotiated a loan to the State to complete the work.

The final stretch is in Anne Arundel, just completed at the point where it intersects the Crain highway, near Priests bridge, which was relocated to further shorten the distance to Washington.

State Senator Given
$25,000 for Dry Raid

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—State Senator George H. Bender won a verdict of $25,000 today in his damage suit against State Probation Inspector W. J. Patrick, growing out of a liquor raid on Bender's home here over a year ago.

Follesman John Connors, who made the raid with Patrick, was purged of any damage liability. Testimony disclosed that an anonymous note received by Patrick which listed Bender's address, but not his name, was the basis for the raid. No liquor was found at the home.

HALL DETECTIVE IS ARRESTED IN COURT AS AN ACCESSORY

Di Martini, After Giving Evidence, Is Forced to Post Bond.

WAY FOR TESTIMONY OF MRS. HALL CLEAR

Carpenter Not Allowed to Deny Mrs. Gibson's Tale
With an Alibi.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—With a procession of witnesses, including Felix Di Martini, detective, once employed by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall in an investigation into the death of her husband and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, the defense in the Hall-Mills case today finally and definitely paved the way for Mrs. Hall to testify in her own behalf tomorrow.

The widow is on trial with her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, for the murder of Mrs. Mills. The case of the defense will be closed soon after Mrs. Hall adds her denial to that of her brothers of being present or knowing anything of the double killing more than four years ago.

Di Martini created a mild sensation when he entered the courtroom just before the luncheon recess. He was arrested last month in Brooklyn on a New Jersey warrant charging him with being an accessory after the fact of the murder, of concealing evidence and attempting to bribe witnesses. The New York court of appeals ordered his release.

Warrant Is Served.
After testifying this afternoon, in denial of all allegations made against him by the state, the New York detective, through his attorney, accepted service of a warrant for his arrest and posted bail for his appearance. His lawyer argued for dismissal of the charge of being an accessory after the fact, after the adjournment of court.

Justice Parker ruled today that Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter, cousin of the defendants and under indictment awaiting trial on the same charges, could not testify in denial of testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson at the preliminary examination that he was present at or near the spot where the bodies of the minister and choir singer were found. Mrs. Gibson at the present trial said Henry Stevens and "another man" were there, but she was told by the State's attorney not to identify the "other man."

On cross-examination it was brought out that the woman farmer had identified Henry Carpenter as a man whom she had previously identified. It was held that there was no identification in so far as the present trial is concerned. His testimony was restricted to a denial that he had carried any packages from the Hall home.

Jurors Declared Lax.
The court session today was brought to a close as a dozen neighbors of Mrs. Jane Gibson went to the stand for brief examinations, testifying that her reputation for truth and veracity is

PN-10-2 REACHES COLON, FINISHING 875-MILE HOP

Bartlett and Crew Receive Ovation on Completing U.S.- Panama Flight.

EBERLE PRAISES FLIERS

Colon, Panama, Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—The United States naval plane PN-10 No. 2 arrived at the Coco Solo station here at about 5:30 p. m. today from the Isle of Pines, Cuba. Bartlett, pilot and the members of the crew were given a great ovation when they landed.

Commander Bartlett announced the flight proved the feasibility of getting planes from the United States to the Canal Zone quickly under all conditions. He said he would have made the destination without difficulty only for a shortage of lubricating oil while over the Isle of Pines, which compelled him to stop there. The plane was attempting a nonstop flight from Norfolk, Va., to Colon.

Commander Bartlett's crew was made up of Lieut. H. C. Rodd and C. H. Schillinger and Machinist's Mate Charles J. Butler.

Commander Bartlett reported to the Navy Department that "everything functioned well from Norfolk to Panama, except that lubricating oil consumption was too high." The radio was "exceptional," he said.

This was the first official report on the behavior of the two PN-10 planes since they left Norfolk, Va., Tuesday afternoon on an attempted nonstop flight to Colon to try for a new distance record for this type of seaplane and to demonstrate its scouting ability.

Both planes came to grief, however, the PN-10 No. 2 after exhausting its oil, and the PN-10 No. 1 after breaking a connecting rod on its starboard engine.

The PN-10 No. 2 hopped off at 6:30 yesterday morning from St. Francis western tip of the Isle of Pines, where she went down Wednesday morning, and completed the hop of 875 miles in 10 hours and 33 minutes, averaging 73.6 knots an hour.

Admiral Edward W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, said last night he was much gratified that the men showed so much nerve in desiring to continue the flight after having gone down.

DONOVAN CITY PLAN MAY WIN COOLIDGE HELP, IS INDICATION

But He Sees No Reason for Change in Capital Fiscal Affairs.

HAS GIVEN PROPOSAL
NO STUDY UP TO NOW

Lends Impression of Wanting to Learn More, Despite His Stand.

President Coolidge does not see the need of removing the District's fiscal affairs from under the budget bureau and comptroller general, but there are indications he might be won over to the proposal.

He has given no serious study to it, it was made known at the White House yesterday, and at this time is inclined to look on it as a rather novel idea and as being in the same category as the desire of all department heads to have their own budget and comptroller.

But callers at the White House got the impression he would like to learn more about the proposal, especially as it concerns the view expressed by Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, that the two Federal bureaus by virtue of their control over District fiscal affairs really are the local government.

The two agencies wholly are out of touch with local needs, in Donovan's opinion, yet one of them prepares the appropriations and the other controls the terms under which they may be expended.

Discussing the proposal rather informally, the President was represented as feeling that the District is necessarily a unit of the Federal government, a Federal city whose affairs are inextricably woven with those of the Federal government—and that inasmuch as the other Federal units are subject to the budgetary fiscal control there is no reason why the District should not be.

Holds Heads Are U. S. Officials.
Incidentally, the President is understood to be of the belief that the commissioners are Federal officials, although the House judiciary committee at the last session of Congress held in the case of former Commissioner Felling, that they are not, but are officers of the municipal corporation.

The point that the Federal government contributes a fixed lump sum to the local government and therefore should not be concerned in how much the local taxpayers desired to spend is understood to have impressed the President as a favorable phase of the proposal and to have prompted his desire to learn more of the proposal before reaching a conclusion.

He is understood, however, to be unable to see just how a local budget bureau and comptroller could be set up. Such local agencies, to be effective as a check, should not be appointed by the commissioners or subordinate to them, it is pointed out, but

6 MUST DIE FOR KILLING OF 1 IN A PRISON ESCAPE

Joliet Convicts Found Guilty of Slaying Peter N. Klein, Deputy Warden.

LEOPOLD AVOIDS TRIAL
HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—Six lives were ordered forfeited to the State today for the taking of one when a jury here returned a verdict of guilt and decreed hanging for the convicts who slew Peter N. Klein, a deputy warden in the new State penitentiary near Joliet, last May in a short-lived break to liberty. None of the convicts displayed emotion as he was named. Formal sentencing and fixing of the date for hanging them was postponed until after a hearing on a motion for a new trial December 10.

Immediately after they were sentenced the convicts were chained in pairs and under armed guards were rushed back to their prison cells. One of the men who broke prison, James Price, remains at large. The others were captured shortly after their escape.

Those who must hang are: Charles Shuler, 19 years old, serving a life sentence for murder; Charles Duchowski, 28, serving 25 years for murder; Walter Staleck, 37, serving 10 years to life for burglary; Bernardo Rios, 24, Mexican, serving a life sentence for murder; Roberto Torres, 26, Mexican, 10 years to life for murder; Gregorio Rios, 20, Mexican, 10 years to life for burglary.

Klein was killed in his office in the cell house devoted to solitary confinement.

Hjalmar Rehn, State's attorney, has indicated that he would not seek the indictment and trial of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., who, with Richard Loeb, is serving a life sentence for the murder of young Bobby Franks in Chicago two years ago. Leopold was in solitary confinement for stealing sugar when Klein was slain near his cell and he was offered an opportunity to escape.

Leopold refused to testify in the trial, stating that the "ethics" of the penitentiary forbade one convict testifying in a case involving another.

Cold Wave Due Today, With Strong Winds

Borne along by strong winds from the Northwest, a real cold wave is about to envelop Washington, the weather bureau announced last night. Today will be "much colder," the forecaster said; likewise tomorrow. By tonight, however, the strong wind will have diminished.

The cold wave, accompanied by snow flurries in at least five States, is expected to grip the entire section east of the Mississippi River, with the exception of the extreme South. Snow is expected to fall in the northeastern part of Maryland.

81 Fined for Strike Under Italian Law

Gallarate, Italy, Nov. 26 (By A. P.).—Italy's new law directed against "white strikes" had its first application here today with the fining of 81 clothing workers for stopping work with the intention of obtaining better terms of employment from their employer. The workers were fined 125 lire each.

Will Rogers Says Football Tickets Are in Pork Barrel

Special to The Washington Post.
Springfield, Ill., Nov. 26.—All tickets for Army-Navy game tomorrow in Chicago, were taken by congressmen and senators. They are getting as high as 100 votes a seat for them. Football is in the pork barrel, too. Yours for the lowdown on public servants. WILL ROGERS.

HOEHLING TO DECIDE ON FALL AND DOHENY TESTIMONY MONDAY

Judge Adjourns Court to Study Question Never Heretofore Raised.

SHOWN AS INTRICATE

Evening Sessions Proposed to Hasten End of Case Before Christmas.

By ALBERT W. FOX.
After a three-hour legal battle yesterday, Justice Hoehling announced that he would render his decision at the opening of court on Monday morning on the important question of whether or not testimony, which Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny gave to a Senate committee, can be used against them in the pending conspiracy trial.

"The question involved and the matter is of course very important," the judge announced after he had taken a recess for deliberation following a brief rebuttal statement by Owen J. Roberts, of government's special counsel, at the beginning of the afternoon session.

Just before court recessed at 2:30 p. m. Justice Hoehling announced that Saturday sessions might be held after tomorrow. Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for Fall, suggested that evening sessions might later be arranged for to expedite the trial and perhaps enable the jurymen to return to their homes by Christmas. The court expressed willingness to make such arrangements.

Legal Field Day in Court.
Mr. Robert had argued for the admission of the testimony when the day's session began and Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Mr. Doheny, and Wilton J. Lambert and Levi Cooke, counsel for Fall, had made reply. It was a legal field day for rival counsel and the fact that it was to feature the proceedings had been made known in advance. But interest in the arguments paled in comparison with that which will be taken in the decision from the bench on this point and Justice Hoehling clearly indicated that he fully realizes the importance which lawyers from one end of the country to the other will attach to his verdict.

Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene want to submit two documents to the jury, namely the letter which Fall wrote to the Senate committee which was investigating the oil leases, in response to the request or command of Senator Lenroot, chairman of that committee, and the statement which Doheny made to this committee on January 24, 1924.

In his letter Fall refers to the part Edward B. McLean playing in loaning him the $100,000 to buy the Harris ranch, and Doheny, in his statement to the committee, explains that he made the $100,000 loan to Fall. Apart from these statements the purport of which have already been communicated to the jury, the testimony at issue is of such a character that counsel for Doheny and Fall will do their utmost to have it become known to the jurymen in some way or other because they consider it distinctly favorable to their clients.

Challenged by Defense.
But defense counsel challenge the right of the government to bring it in as evidence now and they maintain that it can not be admitted as evidence at all without violation of section 859 of the revised statutes which stipulates that "No testimony given by a witness before either House or before any committee of either House of Congress shall be used as evidence in any criminal proceeding against him in any court."

Thus, there is only one major question for Justice Hoehling to decide and that is whether the testimony which Fall made to the committee by letter and the testimony which Doheny gave as a witness does or does not come within the plain meaning of section 859.

At first glance the answer would admittedly appear simple, because the wording of the statute is so unmistakably clear and there would seem to be no doubt that what Fall and Doheny communicated to the Senate committee constituted testimony, that they were witnesses before that committee and that the proposition now attempted is to use testimony of these witnesses before a Senate committee in a criminal proceeding against them in a court of law.

Simple Proposition Intricate.
But after resourceful lawyers on both sides had finished their arguments yesterday the seemingly simple proposition had assumed meanings and shades of meaning which few in the little courtroom had dreamed of when the proceedings began. The question of how the Constitution afforded immunity of witnesses from prosecution, the question of whether section 859 meant what it seemed to mean, the reasons behind the enacting of the statute—all were brought forward by Mr. Roberts, who was in his best form and left no stone unturned to convince Judge
